BERLIN MEDIATION MOVE STALLED

Marshall, Off For Paris, Says Policy United

Secretary Certain Vinson Incident Caused "Confusion"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—(AP)—Secretary of State Marshall was flying back to the United Nations meeting in Paris tonight, after saying the world now has evidence that United States foreign policy is "completely united."

Those were the words he used upon his departure from Washington National Airport to describe the end result of a round of statements issued by both Democratic and Republican leaders on President Truman's now discarded proposal to send Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson on a peace mission to Moscow.

Harmful Confusion

He told newsmen that there was no doubt that "confusion" had arisen in Paris over the fact that the news of the incident broke on Friday night whereas, Marshall said, Mr. Truman had abandoned the project on last Tuesday afternoon. This confusion, he said, had exercised "harmful influence" on the Paris meeting.

With Marshall aboard the huge presidential plane which will reach the French capital tomorrow were Paul G. Hoffman, administrator of the European aid program, and Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith, American envoy to Moscow. Hoffman is en route to ECA conferences in Paris and Smith is going back to his post in the Soviet capital after two weeks of conferring with officials in Washington.

Marshall himself was taking back to the American delegation at the crucial United Nations meeting the latest ideas which Mr. Truman and he had worked out for dealing with major issues now up there. When the Secretary was asked whether he had some new answers to outstanding questions he replied "none that I can tell you about now."

Fears Misunderstanding

Despite his previously expressed hope that President Truman's statement of Saturday night on the Vinson affair would clear it up for foreign governments as well as at home, he appeared to be still concerned over the possibility that it might not be understood.

To reporters who saw him off he repeatedly emphasized that he made his flying trip back to Washington —he arrived Saturday morning—"solely to bring the President up to date as to what has been occurring in Paris."

He said that he had heard it reported that he was threatening to resign and declared "that isn't the way I do business—there should be no doubt about that."

Truman, Marshall At Odds, Reds Told

MOSCOW, Oct. 11—(AP)—The Russian people were told today that differences exist between President Truman and Secretary of State Marshall over the Berlin question.

The Communist newspaper Pravda published prominently a story on the President's plan to send Chief Justice Vinson to Moscow. Pravda said American political circles have connected Marshall's trip home from Paris with "differences" which appear to have arisen between the American leaders.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, distributed a dispatch saying: "Marshall, in fear of weakening his own position in Paris, recommended to Truman over the teletype (Paris-to-Washington) that he renounce his decision. Truman has agreed to this."

The Russian people were further informed that Marshall at a press conference said there was no foundation for the report of differences between himself and President Truman.

Tass said Truman decided to send Vinson to Moscow when he "became dissatisfied with the situation in connection with the so-called Berlin question."

Dewey Proposes Labor Program; Truman Stands Up For New Deal

President Sketches 8-Point Program To Build Upon It

AKRON, O., Oct. 11 (AP)—President Truman proposed tonight an eight-point program to build a "better way of life" upon a New Deal he said Thomas E. Dewey "wants to go to Washington to destroy."

The Republicans, he said, "tasted blood" in the 80th Congress and are "waiting eagerly" to do "a real hatchet job on the New Deal" with a GOP Congress and President.

But this campaign is the "peoples crusade," Mr. Truman said, and "we're going to win."

In an address prepared for delivery here tonight, Mr. Truman openly embraced the whole New Deal.

Proposing to build upon it for the future, he spoke up for such things as repeal of the Taft-Hartley labor law, a higher minmum wage, more social security benefits, expanded housing, health and education, a fight against the high cost of living.

Snipes At Dewey, Taft

He went after his Republican opposition in the rubber capital and in 10 other speeches of a dawn-to-dark bid for Ohio's 25 electoral votes. He was out "to take the hide off em fro mtop to bottom." He said so in advance, all the way through the state.

And today the President did get in against Dewey his most direct licks of the entire campaign. He didn't name his rival but he sniped away busily at the "Republican candidate."

He jabbed briskly, too, at Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio and Rep. Fred Hartley (R-NJ), co-authors of what he calls the "awful" Taft-Hartley labor law.

In his own program offered the voters tonight, mostly a repetition of points he has stressed before, Mr. Truman proposed:

1. Repeal of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act.
2. Increase the national minimum wage from 40 to 75 cents an hour.
3. Extend social security insurance to "large groups of people not now protected."

Ignores John L. Lewis

4. Boost such benefits by "approximately 50 per cent."
5. Expand "facilities for looking after the nation's health."
6. Federal aid to states for education.
7. Federal aid for "slum clearance and low-rent housing."
8. Action "at once" against high prices.

The Chief Executive kept trying to smoke Dewey out on these and other issues as he campaigned today through industrial cities in Southwestern Ohio.

He ignored John L. Lewis in Cincinnati, where the United Mine Workers has been denouncing him at the union convention.

French Railroad Unions' Pay Demands Rejected

PARIS, Oct. 11 (AP)—The French government tonight refused Communist demands for wage increases in the nationalized railroads and threatened to fire any strikers who keep others off the job.

The position of the government was made known by Transport Minister Christian Pineau as pro-Communist unions pressed toward a general transport stoppage in the face of another high government official's charge that the Cominform had ordered the present strike wave.

Navy Ships To Scatter Flowers For War Dead

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Navy ships will scatter flowers for the sailors and marines who died in World War II and were buried at sea.

The traditional memorial service will be held on Sunday, October 24. Flowers received from relatives and friends of the dead will be placed aboard ships at bases in the United States and abroad, taken out to sea and scattered on the waves.

Ickes, Declaring Truman Sincere, Will Support Him

Chooses On Basis Of Domestic Issues

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Harold L. Ickes ,who quit the Truman Cabinet in a huff two years ago, came out today for the election of President Truman in November.

Ickes dubbed the Republican nominee "Thomas Elusive Dewey, the candidate in sneakers."

The former Secretary of the Interior and self-styled "Old Curmudgeon" said he had opposed Mr. Truman for the Democratic nomination. He said he also objected to Gov. Dewey.

"I would welcome an opportunity to vote for someone else," he said in a statement, "but Wallace in his Cummunist stew is impossible and to support Norman Thomas would be wasting a vote."

Ickes said Mr. Truman and Gov. Dewey both "espouse practically the same international program," so he made his choice on the basis of domestic issues.

"I prefer to support Mr. Truman, who is straightforward and sincere, if at times more unpredictable than I would wish," Ickes said. "He is at least comfortably earthy and without cant."

The former Cabinet member said Dewey refuses to say where he stands on the major issues.

"And so he is for 'unity' and Alice in Wonderland and Grimm's Fairy Tales and virtue, to say nothing of mother and home," Ickes' statement went on. At that point, it quoted the jingle:

"I want to be an angel
And with the angels stand,
A crown upon my forehead,
A harp within my hand."

Among other criticisms of Dewey, Ickes said the GOP candidate "has said nothing about that scandalous plank in the Republican platform which pledges the surrender of our oil-rich tidelands to the oil industry by the pretex of quit-claiming them to the abutting states, without compensation."

GOP Nominee Lauds T-H Act And Sharply Raps Administration

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 11 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey tonight praised the Taft-Hartley law, outlined a 12-point program for labor, and—in allusions to foreign policy—accused the Truman administration of blundering and fumbling.

Opening round two of his presidential campaign, the Republican nominee told an applauding crowd which overflowed 11,000-seat Hunt Armory:

"No administration ever made so many fundamental blunders, even from base political motives."

The New York Governor sailed into his Democratic opposition with the sharpest criticism he has voiced in the campaign.

He used blunt language before he arrived here, too. In talks in Erie, Sharon, New Castle and Rochester, Pa., he termed the present administration a "miserable" one, called it "incompetent," and "pusillanimous," and said it played politics with human rights.

He made no specific reference to the President's abandoned plan to send Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson to Moscow—an idea Dewey is known to regard as a desperate blunder.

But the GOP candidate said:

"We are electing a Republican administration that will unfailingly back up the work of its own representatives in the United Nations for peace."

U. S. Must Support Friends

Earlier today in a talk before 9,000 at Erie, Pa., Dewey said that if he is elected he will bring to this country "a government that knows where it is going" in international affairs.

Dewey tonight accused the administration of deliberately using enactment of the labor measure to "stir up dissension and confusion."

Then he sketched this program:

1. Increase of the present minimum wage of 40 cents an hour. No amount was specified.
2. Overhauling of the social security system, with extension of coverage and greater benefits for the aged and unemployed.
3. Establishment of a Labor Department "equal in actual Cabinet status" to the Commerce and Agriculture Departments.
4. "New and vigorous leadership" for the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service "so that major disputes are settled before they become strikes."

Would Encourage Unions

5. Encouragement of unions "to grow in responsibility and strengthen the processes of collective bargaining."
6. An end to "special interest legislation and special interest administration."
7. Breaking of "the log-jam in housing."
8. Steps to make sure "soaring prices do not steal food and clothing and other necessities from American families."
9. Removal of "the fears that are being spread among our people of a boom and bust business cycle."
10. A civil rights program that will "press forward in solving the problems of race relations and discrimination x x x."
11. "While strengthening our civil liberties under the Bill of Rights, we shall faithfully and vigorously expose Communists and their activities to the full light of day."
12. Expenditure of every effort to "make the world in which we live a world at peace in which human rights and human progress will flourish and increase."

Taft Urges Tenn. Demos To Back GOP Nominees

NASHVILLE, Oct. 11—(AP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) opened a southern campaign tour tonight with an appeal to Tennessee Democrats to join in support of Republican nominees for President and Senator.

In an address prepared for delivery before a rally here and over a nationwide radio hookup, Taft sharply criticized President Truman for the conduct of America's foreign policy.

"He has just weakened our case against Russia" he said, by proposing to send Chief Justice Vinson to Moscow, just after we had submitted the dispute to the United Nations, there by discrediting both Secretary Marshall and the United Nations itself."

Supreme Court Upholds Merit Hike Bargaining

State Ban On Slot Machines Approved

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—(AP)—The United States Supreme Court today refused to interfere with a lower court ruling that an employer must bargain with a union before giving "merit raises" to individual workers.

But the high court agreed to review another case—a lower court's ruling that there was nothing wrong when a textile mill granted a general wage increase without notifying union officials.

The decision to be issued as a result of this review may further clarify an employer's obligations, under present labor laws, to talk over any pay raises with the representative union.

1. Upheld the right of states to ban slot machines, pinball games and other such devices.

Mrs. Durant's Appeal Denied

2. Refused to hear an appeal by Mrs. Kathleen Nash Durant, former WAC captain, against her conviction in the $1,500,000 Hesse crown jewel theft case.
3. Postponed decision on a plea for a rehearing by 11 leaders of the joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee, who were convicted of contempt of Congress.
4. Refused to reconsider its decision last term that an employer must include premium pay for night and other odd-hour work when figuring a worker's average wage to determine overtime rates. The Labor Department, which enforces the law requiring time and a half pay after 40 hours, announced that it will begin on October 18 requiring employers to observe this court decision.

No Action In Rail Case

5. Agreed to review a list of labor issues involving employer-employe relations, chiefly actions in which unions or workers had lost in lower courts.

The Supreme Court withheld action on one major case—a petition by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Enginemen and Firemen, and the Switchmen's Union of North America to throw out a permanent injunction issued here last July 2 against a threatened railroad strike.

The court has yet to decide whether it will review the unions' contention that the district court order impairs their "fundamental right" to strike.

Mother Sues Veronica

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 11 (AP)—Veronica Lake's mother sued the actress for support today. She charged her daughter had left her destitute.

Mrs. C. Veronica Keane, 47, asked $500 monthly support plus $17,416 she claimed under a 1943 support agreement.

Woman Has 10th Caesarian Baby For New Record

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 11. (AP)—Mrs. William Shriver, 37, gave birth to her tenth child by Caesarian operation, setting a record in world medical history, her physician reported today.

The child, a four-pound, 10-ounce daughter, was born here Saturday.

The attending physician, who declined use of his name, said the previous record was nine Caesarian births.

All of Mrs. Shriver's previous children are living. They range from 17 to two years old.

32 Japanese Face Beheading Charge

TOKYO, Oct. 11 (AP)—Thirty-two Japanese will plead Thursday to charges they used American B-29 fliers as live dummies to practice ancient sports and finally beheaded 33 of the wartime captives.

The defendants, all officers and men of Japan's Western Army, include four generals already convicted of using American airmen for medical experiments at Kyushu Imperial University. One has been sentenced to hang.

The new charges have been filed with United States Eighth Army Military Commission by Allied headquarters' legal section. The defense was granted four days, until Thursday, to consult five defendants apprehended only last week and brought to Sugamo Prison here over the weekend.

The prosecution charges 17 of the 33 executed Americans were slain within four hours after Emperor Hirohito's surrender speech was broadcast at noon on August 15, 1945.

Paul K. Von Bergen, Wyandotte, Mich., the prosecutor, declared eight B-29 crewmen were beheaded after brutalities in which they were used as dummies for archery, karate or Kesagiri.

In the practice of karate, the Japanese tries to drive his fist through wooden pillars; if successful, he is allowed to try the same on a human target. Kesagiri is a two-handed sword stroke in which the blow is brought down across the body diagonally from the left shoulder, through the heart to the right side of the stomach.

Two Men Suffer Burns In Indiana Mine Blast

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Oct. 11—(AP)—Two men were burned, neither seriously in an explosion tonight at the Dresser mine six miles southwest of here, Mine Superintendent Harry Cruickshank reported.

Cruickshank said about 13 other miners were working in the area where the explosion occurred but that all have been accounted for. Nearly 40 men were working in the mine at the time, he said.

The two injured workers were William Davidson and George Kresak. They were taken to Union Hospital here.

Cause of the blast was not known immediately.

Railroads To Ask 13 Per Cent Hike In Freight Rates

To Amend Petition; Pay Boosts Cited

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—The railroads announced today they will seek a 13 per cent increase in freight rates. They cited new wage hikes.

The industry asked for an eight per cent boost in a petition before the Interstate Commerce Commission on October 1. This will be amended tomorrow to the higher figure.

Jacob Aronson, vice president and general counsel of the New York Central System and chief attorney for the railroads in the rate case, said in an announcement that since the petition was filed "approximately 175,000 employes represented by the Order of Railway Conductors and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen have been given a wage increase of 10 cents per hour effective October 16, which sets the pattern for all other classes of railroad employes."

Aronson commented the prices of all supplies necessary for railroad operations are still on the upgrade.

He said that the industry will ask the ICC to grant an immediate "emergency" increase of eight per cent while hearings are going forward on the proposed 13 per cent advance for long term application.

The amended petition, like the original, will propose specific ceilings in dollars and cents on the advances to be applied to coal, coke, iron ore, fresh fruits and vegetables, and lumber and sugar.

This means that on short-haul traffic, these commodities would take the full percentage increase, but on long-distance traffic, they would take less than the 13 per cent.

Crop Output 8 Per Cent Over Record Is Assured

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. (AP)—Favorable harvest time weather has virtually assured the nation a crop volume this year topping the 1946 record by eight per cent, the Agriculture Department reported today.

Featuring the bumper output is a precedent-breaking corn crop that will enable farmers to increase production of meats, dairy and poultry products. This should mean lower prices to consumers late next year, officials said.

The big crops already have caused some declines in prices paid to farmers—particularly for grains and oil seed crops.

Corn was estimated at 3,567,955,000 bushels, an increase of about 39,000,000 bushels over the forecast of a month ago.

West, Standing Firm, Believes Talks Useless

Tougher U. S. Attitude Reportedly Springs From Vinson Affair

PARIS, Oct. 11 (AP) — Desperate attempts by "neutral" nations in the United Nations Security Council to mediate the Berlin crisis apparently were stalled tonight.

Spokesmen for the United States, Britain and France declared that the Western Powers are standing firm on their demand that the Soviet blockade be lifted. The three powers were reported to feel that there had been enough time for mediation and the council should go ahead with meetings.

Argentine Foreign Minister Juan A. Bramuglia talked privately again with Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky.

Western Power spokesmen said in the absence of new Soviet proposals they assumed Moscow still insists that the Berlin case must go to the four-power Council of Foreign Ministers packaged with the whole German problem.

One high diplomatic source said the attitude of the United States has toughened in the last two days.

After meeting with Vishinsky, Bramuglia was reported to have dined with John Foster Dulles, United States delegate and foreign affairs adviser to Gov. Dewey.

Springs From Vinson Affair

A high informant said Dr. Philip C. Jessup, United States Security Council deputy delegate, told Bramuglia at a weekend conference that the United States appreciated his efforts but that the Argentine did not understand the Russian mind. This informant quoted Jessup as saying Americans believed any negotiations would be fruitless.

Bramuglia was represented as feeling that a tougher American attitude sprang from the disclosure that President Truman planned to send Chief Justice Vinson to Moscow and the cancellation of the plan after talks with Secretary of State Marshall.

Bramuglia has been attempting to mediate the East-West diferences since last Wednesday as temporary president of the Security Council and as a spokesman for the "neutrals" — Argentina, Canada, China, Belgium, Colombia and Syria.

In the face of the apparent deadlock, the Security Council is expected to meet Wednesday or Thursday to go over the Berlin situation and perhaps open full-scale debate. Only the Western Powers have spoken so far, accusing the Soviet Union of threatening world peace. Russia is boycotting the discussions.

Dr. Philip C. Jessup, of the United States; Sir Alexander Cadogan, of Britain, and Alexandre Parodi, of France, conferred privately tonight.

The western spokesman stressed that no arrangement would be accepted that involved negotiations while the blockade was in effect. The United States, Britain and France were described as being completely together on thsi matter.

Arms Issue Comes Up

A reporter asked Vishinsky today whether he had any answer for Bramuglia. The Russian delegate smiled, waved his hand and remarked "I can't say anything."

Berlin occupied the major share of attention in United Nations halls but arms reduction and Palestine came up.

Britain put a resolution before the Assembly's Political Committee which would blame Russia for lack of agreement on slashing armaments. Last week Vishinsky accused the Western Powers of blocking disarmament plans for the last 20 years.

Russian Fighter Flies Close To British Plane

BERLIN, Oct. 11—(AP)—The British Military Government said today a Russian Yak fighter flew dangerously close to a British transport plane near Perleberg, about 75 miles northwest of Berlin.

The announcement said the fighter stunted while the transport flew toward Berlin on the airlift.

The Yak looped and rolled around the British craft, polishing off the acrobatics by diving beneath the transport's nose, the British said.

A verbal protest was made to Russian authorities.

Big Oceanarium Is Scene Of Porpoise-Whale Battle

MARINELAND, Fla., Oct. 11. (AP)—Fighting broke out today in the big Oceanarium between half a dozen porpoises and three of 44 pilot whales which floundered ashore near here Friday.

The fighting continued for the better part of the day but it became desultory and was marked mostly by sudden rushes of one mammal toward the other. At one time, a bull porpoise—leader of others in the tank—knocked one of the whales completely out of the water.

Arthur F. McBride, curator, said it might take several weeks for the animals to become accustomed to each other—unless the whales were killed before then.

A five-month-old porpoise was butted to death in the initial battle. The baby was the first conceived and born, and only the second ever born, in captivity.

Forty of the whales died Friday in the boiling surf after their mysterious plunge through shallow waters onto the sand. Officials here rescued four but one died Saturday.

The marine battle was discovered early today when the night crew heard strange grunts and extremely heavy bumping and thudding against the reinforced concrete and steel tank.

Turning on lights over the water, which was murky in the semi-darkness, they could discern the huge shapes rushing one another. They could not, however, tell which might be the aggressor.

Later in the day, however, porpoise teeth marks could be seen on the bodies of the whales. The body of the baby showed no external marks but blood was running from the mouth, indicating internal injuries.

McBride said the strange conflict might shed light on why the whales suddenly beached themselves.

Miners Hike Lewis' Pay, Double Dues

CINCINNATI, Oct. 11 (AP)—The nation's coal diggers today voted John L. Lewis a $50,000 yearly salary, about the highest fixed pay for any labor leader in the world.

Then the miners, in convention here, raised dues and initiation fees to fatten the United Mine Workers' treasury against possible new strike troubles and fines.

Lewis warned the 3,000 delegates they should make ready for the future by building up a strong reserve. He said the next fine, if there is one, might be $10,000,000 or more.

A $1,420,000 fine imposed by Federal Justice T. Alan Goldsborough for contempt of a back-to-work order in last spring's pension strike is being appealed to the Supreme Court.

By voting to double the dues—from an average of $2 a month to a flat $4 throughout the country—the 400,000 soft coal miners and the 80,000 anthracite differs were handing over to their international officers more than $1,000,000 a month.

The international will get half of the $4. The local will get $1 and the district organization will get the other dollar.

Pensioners and unemployed miners will pay only $1 a month as inactive members.

The fee to join the union was jumped from $10 to $50. The local will take $20 of the new fee, and the international will get the other $30.

The boosts in dues and initiation fee were not approved without a struggle.

When the fee hike uproar began to look serious, Lewis strode to the rostrum to argue for the administration proposal. He pounded home the idea that the union must be strong financially to meet the future.

Opponents protested that times might get worse and they would not be able to afford such a high monthly dues checkoff.

But their objections were overwhelmed when Lewis grabbed the gavel and shouted for a showdown. Only a sprinkling of hands were raised against the dues.

The vote was closer on the initiation fees jump. Vice - President Thomas Kennedy, presiding when that vote was taken, had difficulty making his decision stick. There were cries for a roll call, but Kennedy, who as lieutenant governor of Pennsylvania once presided over the State Senate, said it was not necessary. He reminded delegates that 30 per cent of them would have to insist upon a roll call.

Stadium Rules Are Rules But Police Head Bit Sad

BELLEVILLE, N. J., Oct. 11 (AP)—Public Safely Director Louis Noll was just a bit sad today as he told how rules are rules at high school football games in Municipal Stadium.

The occasion was Saturday's 6-6 tie with Jefferson High. The band struck up the Star-Spangled Banner as it does at the start of all Belleville High football games.

The National Anthem was the signal—this Saturday as in those past—for a mass over-the-fence invasion of the field by youngsters who weren't too keen at putting up 50 cents at the entrance gates.

Saturday, the police force, acting under orders, was ready. Instead of snapping to attention and facing the flagpole, the officers wheeled about and nabbed the non-paying guests by the dozens. One auxiliary officer even scored with a flying tackle on the one-yard line.

Another 100 or so invaders, poised for the fence-leaping, beat a hasty retreat.

"I'm not too happy to report," said Police Head Noll, "that none of the kids was able to sneak in.

"We all did a little sneaking in when we were kids, and we did it because we didn't have the admission price."

"The nation," Noll said, "is spending all kinds of money to keep juvenile delinquency down, yet here is a case where a smaller fee would attract more juveniles to a wholesome sport. We had better knock the price down to a quarter, where it was."

State Tax Forms May Be In Error

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 11 (AP)—Maryland citizens may find it hard to believe but pleasant to take when they make out their state income tax returns next year

Chances are, an official said today, the forms will say the tax must be paid at a rate of 2½ per cent on earned income, when all the state really wants is two per cent.

"We have a problem on our hands," Chief Deputy Comptroller Joseph O'C. McCusker conceded.

The paradox would result from these circumstances:

Last year the General Assembly passed a law increasing the rate of earned income from two to 2.5 per cent and that on corporate income from 1.5 to four per cent, effective on money made this year.

When the state totaled up its revenues last June 30, it found a surplus of some $20,000,000.

Last week the Board of Revenue Estimates recommended forgetting about the higher levy on an individual's income. Gov. Lane said he agreed: Leave it at two per cent.

But the 2.5 rate is still a law. The General Assembly would have to pass another bill to prevent the increase.

Meanwhile, the printer has to go to press so the forms will be ready for distribution the first of the year.

"They have to be printed in accordance with the law as it stands," McCusker said.

Diphtheria Total Rises To Seven

With one more case of diphtheria reported by the Health Department, the total of cases reported in the county in one week has risen to seven.

Incidence of the disease is running in the same pattern as last year, when over 100 cases were reported in the county, with a number of deaths resulting, according to Dr. Winter R. Frantz, health officer.

Dr. Frantz said that children in the first grades of both public and parochial schools are being given the first of two doses in the annual immunization program.

Parents are urged to make sure that their children are immunized and doses of the diphtheria toxoid are administered each Saturday morning at the Health Department in the Public Safety building. Adults exposed to the disease can also be immunized on Saturdays at the Health Department.

Hector David Castro, of El Salvador, submitted a resolution proposing that the arms question be given to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission when that body finished work on setting up international atomic controls. Delegates generally agreed that the atomic commission is far from a solution of its own problem and the move would in effect pigeon-hole arms limitation for some time.

On Palestine, the British were reported desirous of having a meeting of the Security Council on Holy Land problems. It was said that they especially wanted to know what has been done about apprehending the assassins of Count Folke Bernadotte, the United Nations mediator who was slain in the Jewish section of Jerusalem.

He seeks a doctor of education degree.

City Council Make Halloween Plans

A proposal to block off Baltimore, Holland and George Streets for Halloween festivities made yesterday by Street Commissioner Edgar Reynolds was accepted by the Mayor and Council. Halloween falls on Sunday, and no definite celebration date was set.

The First Church of the Nazarene, 508 Oldtown Road, was granted permission to erect a cloth sign across Oldtown Road in front of the church advertising special services from October 26 through November 7.

A refund of $25 was ordered for Joseph H. Buskey, 537 Greenway Avenue, for tappage and meter fees. The contract was not consumated and the building is to be razed.

Charles Sullivan, 332 Virginia Avenue, was ordered a refund of $4.50 for overpayment of water bills.

Water consumption last week was 83,360,000 gallons as compared to 82,220,000 last year. Daily average was 11,908,000. Water level at Lake Gordon is one foot below the crest of the spillway and at Lake Koon ten feet four inches below.

States' Righters Urge Md. Assembly Session

BALTIMORE, Oct. 11 (AP)—The States' Rights Democrats called upon Gov. Lane today to convene the General Assembly in special session and enact legislation which would permit the listing of the party presidential candidates on the Maryland ballot.

They were joined in the request by National Housewives, Inc. The woman's group urged inclusion of the name of Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, States' Rights Democratic candidate for President on the ballot as a "policy of fair play."

The party was not formed until after the Maryland primary, and state law specifies that nominating petitions must be in the hands of the Secretary of State before the primary.

'tis said he will make a speech tonight.

In the 100 years since Zachary Taylor's famous visit, Cumberland has entertained celebrities by the dozen. And Rosenbaum's has often had the honor of serving those celebrities.

Which brings up an interesting question—

Which of Rosenbaum's distinguished visitors has rated our store's triple-barreled salute—our very best service, our very best quality, and our very best values?

The answer is simple. YOU have. Every day in the week.

YOU, the people of Allegany County and the Tri-State area, are the most distinguished visitors any store could ever hope to have. That's why you've always received the very best of everything from Rosenbaum's.

Truman Escapes From Self In Arms of Morpheus

President Truman escaped in the arms of Morpheus Sunday night from the embarrassment resulting from his wild idea to by-pass everybody and everything in his desire to pull a fast political trick. But in his desire to find peace of mind in sleep he committed the unpardonable act of disappointing a group of partisans and curious who had gathered at the Keyser depot to extend theirs, and to receive his greeting.

His retirement for the night would have been excusable had the time of his arrival in Keyser been at a late hour, but few of the several hundred will find it within their hearts to dismiss their disappointment and the President's apparent indifference to them at such a convenient time as 9:23—little more than three hours out of Washington.

They had been advised by the Mineral County Democratic Executive Committee Chairman that Mr. Truman would make a rear platform appearance during a scheduled operations stop. It must be assumed that such an announcement would not have been made without assurances that he would. His embarrassment in having to announce that Mr. Truman would not see them can be appreciated. It also can be readily understood why his further announcement that Mr. Truman would make an appearance on his return to Washington shortly after noon Saturday fell on deaf ears. The impression was gathered that they intend to show the same indifference on that occasion as the President displayed on this one.

So the train moved on, taking Mr. Truman to the midwest to resume the strangest of all presidential campaigns, after he had interrupted his "stumping" long enough to return to the national capital to receive a "dressing down" at the hands of his Secretary of State for his ill-thought-up scheme to send a special envoy on an appeasement mission to the Kremlin to try and talk his "good old Joe" Stalin into some sort of an agreement outside the United Nations.

Had Mr. Truman been permitted to go through with his plan he would have done untold damage to this country and the world, and would have weakened the bi-partisan support in behalf of our foreign policy which is being so strongly urged by Governor Dewey in his campaign for the presidency. Mr. Dewey, as does the nation, feels that Mr. Truman blundered in his move to supersede his Secretary of State. Senator Vandenberg referred to Mr. Truman's planned unilateral, independent action as a "recent dangerous hour." He warns that this country must avoid any such moves "on our own account, lest we confuse our friendly associates, cramp the Security Council and encourage our opponents to think our appeal to the United Nations is either timid or insincere." In a word "we have just had a narrow escape upon this score, at Washington."

So, having been turned away (thanks to Mr. Marshall) from a move which could have proved one of the worst pitfalls into which he would have plunged this country, Mr. Truman has set out on a swing into the midwest. His main target, to be sure, is the 80th Congress, the "worst" or perhaps "next to the worst," he says—possible secretly referring to its Democratic predecessor. His grievance, that he could not get along with the one, is also his grievance with the other, since the things that he charged the present Congress with not doing are old stuff, carried over from its predecessor.

Truman is in an impossible situation. In attacking the present Congress, he is also attacking his own party. Most of its members in Congress voted with the Republicans in enacting the two major legislative achievements—the sweeping cut in income taxes all along the line and the Taft-Hartley Labor Act. Vetoes of both were his greatest administrative blunders. On June 20, 1947, only 71 House Democrats voted to sustain his veto of the labor act, while 106 Democrats voted to sustain his veto of the labor act, while 106 Democrats voted to override it. Democratic repudiation of his tax-cut veto was even more overwhelming.

Where does that basic situation leave President Truman? His own course provides the answer: He is no longer in the working picture at Washington. He is out on the road railing before audiences in such tolerant humor that even his recent Texas speech about lynching somebody—presumably Republican members of Congress—passed without a ripple. In effect, Government goes on without him.

Yes, he is a confused man and his campaign is the strangest of all and grows more so as time elapses and even while he sleeps.

The Banker's Role In Our Economic System

When a producer of finished goods has to pay more for his raw material than he did before, and yet adds a good deal less than mathematically you might expect to the price of his finished product, he deserves public commendation. There are more such instances in the present American scene than are realized. We cite only one, and that literally the most important of all. It is called "the staff of life" and figures importantly in the Lord's Prayer.

Analysis of the latest available government figures seem to show that while the baker is paying 153 per cent more for his major ingredients, yet the American housewife pays on the average only of 63 per cent more for her bread than during the 1935-39 base period. Flour recently reached a record high of 214 per cent over the base price. While sugar stands at only 61.5 per cent over that price, shortening is up 93 per cent, milk 114.5 per cent. Other elements that enter—labor, machines, distribution and packaging—have all increased more than the price of bread.

Aside from a natural wish to keep prices as reasonable as possible there's another factor, potential kitchen competition. This the American Bakers Association admits: "Bread is one of the few important processed foods which the housewife has the tools and the ingredients to make for herself, any time she believes she can do it at less cost." That goes for cakes and pastries, too, as any baker will tell you, for when sugar was rationed and hard to get the cake and pie business of bakeries mounted. When sugar became more plentiful and could be had without the ration coupon nuisance many housewives went back to making her own. They do offer competition—the one thing bakers keep in mind in keeping prices at the lowest level possible.

Brooklyn bridge is about to be offered for sale, again.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

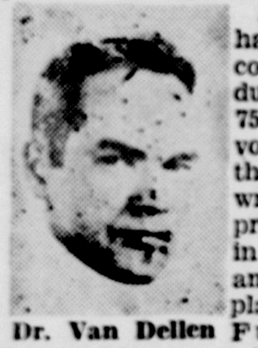
Hand Injuries

Physicians do not belittle any injury of the hand. All too often they have witnessed distressing and disabling complications from nothing more than a neglected pinprick or disregarded blister.



Dr. Van Dellen

Accidents of the hand are also common. In industry, from 50 to 75 per cent involve the fingers, thumb, palm, or wrist. The same probably is true in the home and among children playing outdoors. Furthermore, these mishaps can be more serious than the wounds indicate. Beneath the skin lies an intricate system of nerves, tendons, blood vessels, and tiny bones. Between these are many compartments running back and forth like subterranean passageways. A tiny cut in a vulnerable place may shear off a nerve, paralyzing a finger or leaving the skin numb. If a tendon is cut, movement of the digit is affected. Therefore, a thorough examination of the extremity is always advisable to make sure of the extent of the damage.

A simple gash should always be cleansed well with soap and water and covered with a sterile dressing. This will do more to ward off infection than any other precaution. The same procedure should be followed when a portion of the skin is nicked off or a small area is burned and a blister forms. Antiseptics are rarely required if this plan is carried out.

Crushing injuries, such as those encountered when a door is closed on a finger or the digit is smashed beneath a heavy weight, are more critical and now and then demand expert care. The nail invariably is traumatized and a bone fractured. Internal bleeding occurs and the finger swells like a balloon and feels as though it were going to burst. Relief is obtained by applying pressure to the part and holding the hand above the head. Ice packs also may prove beneficial and now and then a splint is helpful. Ultimately healing takes place, except that the nail falls off and is replaced by another.

Injury from wringers also can be dangerous. The natural impulse is to pull the hand out of the wringer as soon as it is caught, but it is this procedure that causes most harm. By remaining calm, pressing the release, or pulling out the electric cord, the damage can be kept to a minimum. The skin fares the worse and usually tears in the frantic attempt to free the arm. The bones are rarely involved, however. For example, Allen found that breaks occurred in only one out of 119 individuals who sustained an injury of this type.

Many people are likely to become panicky when a laceration on the hand bleeds profusely. They think immediately of a tourniquet or other heroic measures. But oozing can be controlled quickly by elevating the arm, placing a clean cloth over the wound, and applying pressure.

To Rest Or Not

M.E.S. writes: Is it better to relax after a meal or take a walk?

REPLY

Rest is probably a better aid to digestion. The emotions are a great factor and many individuals find walking more relaxing along this line than lying down and mulling over the events of the day.

Bleeding In Brain

O.U. writes: What is a subarachnoid hemorrhage?

REPLY

This is a type of brain hemorrhage. A congenital defect of the blood vessels to the brain, high blood pressure, and hardening of the arteries may be responsible for this disturbance which occurs mainly in the prime of life. Symptoms vary from pain in the head to unconsciousness.

HARDWORKING NERVES

T. J. writes: What is the purpose of the sympathetic nerves?

Reply

They regulate the heart beat, blood flow, glandular secretions, perspiration, and flow of gastric juice and a host of other functions. In other words, they are responsible for many of the body activities over which we have no control—that is, they are carried out automatically.

SAFE

C. K. writes: Is pyribenzamine for hay fever harmful if it is taken too frequently?

Reply

Apparently not, as many individuals have used the drug daily for more than two years with no ill effects.

LAZY MAN

K. H. writes: Is it possible to remove whiskers permanently by plucking them with tweezers?

Reply

This procedure does not destroy the root and, therefore, hair will grow again.

National Defense Department Preparing Large Lend-Lease Program; Even Dewey Makes Mistakes; Secy. Marshall Has Trouble With French And British

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 — It's being kept very hush-hush behind tightly locked Pentagon portals, but, no matter who is elected, the Department of National Defense is preparing a large-scale military lend-lease program to be presented to Congress next January.

The program is vague only regarding the final amount to be asked of Congress. Estimates by those in the know range from 4-½ to 6 billion dollars.

Behind all the conversations held by England, France and the Benelux countries on how to stop the Red Army has been one large question. How much will the United States contribute?

The men in the Pentagon are now preparing three separate projects to be put up to Congress.

1. A straight lend-lease program under which we would ship overseas arms and equipment for about 25 French, British and Benelux armored ground divisions.

2. Establishment of semi-permanent American air and ground force bases in Italy, France, England, Western Germany, Belgium and the Netherlands.

3. A Canadian - American plan for a ring of air bases stretching through Norway-Greenland-Alaska in order to block Soviet air attacks across the Arctic.

Also under consideration is the standardization of all armaments used by members of the Western military alliance.

Automatic War Declaration

The Western European nations are also urging Pentagon officials to ask Congress for the right to declare war automatically in case any of the Western European countries are attacked by Russia. Thus far Secretary Forrestal and his aides are balking.

One headache plaguing the Pentagon planners is the terrific cost of a new lend-lease program when piled on top of the Marshall Plan. Next year the Marshall Plan will cost about 5 billion. Add another 5 billion for lend-lease military aid, plus another 12 billion for our own military establishment plus 5 billion for interest on the national debt, plus 4 billion for veterans' benefits and you get the grand total of 31 billion dollars.

This is all before any money is appropriated for the normal functions of government.

While the program is being kept hush-hush until after the election, top Pentagon officials have been holding informal conversations with Dewey advisers via Ferdinand Eberstadt, the Wall Street banker sometimes mentioned as Dewey's Secretary of National Defense.

Even Dewey Slips

Tom Dewey is a cool, shrewd campaigner, but even he makes occasional slips.

Arriving on the Colorado border the other day at the little town of Julesburg, Dewey got off on the wrong foot by telling how happy he was to be welcomed again "by the people of Denver."

This fluff hit the newspapers. But only a few local papers noted an incident in Greeley. Dewey was interrupted in the middle of his speech by a plane buzzing over the open - air gathering and blaring forth over a loudspeaker: "Vote for Hamil."

Annoyed at all the noise, Dewey blurted: "That fellow Hamil is no friend of mine."

What he had forgotten was that Dave Hamil, Republican candidate for Governor, was almost looking over his shoulder on the speakers' platform.

Worst faux pas, in Denver, went unmentioned by newsmen. Dramatically Dewey urged his audience to return their Congressman to Washington.

It so happens that their Congressman is able John Carroll—a Democrat.

Dewey On Ball

It is no secret that Dewey dislikes Minnesota's bearish Senator Joe Ball, now having a tough fight for re-election against Democratic candidate Hubert Humphrey, Mayor of Minneapolis. But when Vic Johnston, former Stassen man now working for Dewey, reported that Ball was in trouble, Dewey's reaction was to let bygones be bygones.

"You don't owe Joe Ball anything," Johnston remarked.

"That's all right," snapped Dewey. "We've got to elect him."

Marshall's Problems

It isn't the main reason for his return to Washington, but one thing Secretary Marshall is reporting to President Truman is his difficulties with the French and British.

He has had a much tougher time than the press dispatches indicate keeping our Western Allies united regarding a firm Russian policy.

French Foreign Minister Schuman has been especially hard to keep in line. With a large bloc of Communist deputies to worry about, he tried to persuade Marshall that the United Nations should order new Big 4 diplomatic talks instead of a showdown before the U. N. For a time Schuman was quite insistent, argued that if the U. N. ordered Russia to lift the blockade it would get nowhere. Russia would merely ignore it.

Marshall argued differently. He pointed to the months of patient palaver with the Russians, said it was obvious Moscow intended to do nothing except stall.

For a time, the British also leaned toward French appeasement. But Marshall was adamant. Politely, firmly, he made it clear that the United States was committed to staying in Berlin. If we got out of Berlin, we would soon be out of Germany.

With the United States spending billions on European recovery, it was important to remember that if the Allies pulled out of Germany there could be no recovery. Thus ran Marshall's argument. In the end, the French agreed.

Note — Foreign Minister Schuman's chief trouble is that the Communists have skillfully spread the idea that the Marshall Plan is merely an instrument to prepare for war with Russia. "America will fight until the last drop of French blood," the Communists are preaching. U. S. propaganda to explain the motives of the Marshall Plan has not been able to combat this.

Russo-American Tension And Its Relation To Disarming

By MARK SULLIVAN

Into the crisis of our relations with Russia, the Russian heads last week threw a proposal for international disarmament. Our heads rejected it.

This exchange is the most conspicuous present phase of Russian-American tension. Because it deals with the atomic bomb, it goes to the heart of the world's most somber concern. But discussion of the incident must begin by seeing it as what the Russians undoubtedly intended it to be, the launching of a battle for public opinion in America and throughout the world.

The Russians could safely assume that the American people would not be familiar with the details and implications of their proposal, nor with the contrasting proposal which our heads have worked out over the past three years. Our people would know only that Russia made a proposal for disarmament and that we rejected it. The Russians, adept at popular psychology, could assume that the incident would have on our people and the peoples of other nations an effect favorable to Russia.

The Russians, in short, could anticipate a victory in a battle for world opinion, including to some extent American opinion. If this is to be prevented, there is needed a simple statement of what the Russian proposal was, and the difference between it and our proposed program.

Has Two Main Provisions

The Russian proposal had two main provisions. One was, gradual reduction of armaments, beginning with a reduction of one third the first year. With this we could readily agree if it stood alone and subject to a question we must always consider—whether any Russian proposal is made in good faith and meant to be lived up to.

About the atomic bomb, the Russian heads begin by proposing that all atomic weapons be banned, meaning presumably that all existing ones be destroyed. With this we agree. The only existing atomic weapons are the ones in our possession, but this does not weigh with us. We have repeatedly offered to destroy our entire stock of atomic bombs and not to manufacture more. Our offer however is subject to one condition—that there be set up an effective international body and that this body have effective control over all atomic energy in all forms and in all countries.

This brings us to the deep difference between our program about the atomic bomb and the Russian proposal last week. The Russian proposal includes international control, but the control they propose is vague and general, so much so that the very vagueness suggests that the whole Russian proposal is not seriously meant. On the other hand our proposal for international control is specific, detailed and technical; it is the work of experts from 14 nations over some two and a half years.

The difference between our proposal and the Russian one last week can best be made clear by stating what our program is, the history of it so far, and the present status of it as between Russia on one side and we with the rest of the world on the other side.

Sought to Banish Atom

Immediately following the first impact of the atomic bomb on the World, in Japan on August 6, 1947, we took the initiative in steps to assure that the atomic bomb be banished from the world. By our initiative there was set up, within the United Nations, the Atomic Energy Commission, in which 17 nations have been represented. The report made by this commission is one of the great documents of the modern world, it is an attempt to bring the mind of man up to the level of the change wrought in the material world by the atomic bomb. It goes the utmost length of putting atomic energy under international control, involving complete surrender by us of our bombs, the materials for them and the knowledge of how to make them.

The report of the Atomic Energy Commission would set up an international body, and to this body would give absolute and exclusive ownership of all the uranium and thorium anywhere in the world. This body would have exclusive authority to own and manage or license all facilities for producing atomic energy anywhere. It would have the right to inspect anything having to do with atomic energy at any place in any country at any time, including military establishments.

This proposal has been agreed to by 14 of the 17 nations that have been on the Atomic Energy Commission. It is opposed by Russia including the Ukraine, and Poland. The Ukraine delegate said last week that the "Soviet delegates would rather have their arms cut off than vote for such a fantastic organ" as the international control body.

That is the picture and the problem. If there is to be international control of atomic energy; if no nation is to have advantage from it, neither we nor any other; if atomic war is to cease to be a danger and a fear—there is all is. There lies the real situation for world opinion to pass judgment on. There lies the real test of whether the Russian proposal last week was sincere.

Truman's Emissary Plan Is Worst Blunder Of His Career

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—President Truman had a good idea but he tried it at the wrong time and committed one of the most serious blunders of his whole career.

Mr. Truman was well intentioned. In his down-to-earth Missouri way, he tried to get at the commonsense angle of the Russian-American dispute. He wanted to deal directly with Stalin and yet couldn't go to Moscow himself. So he thought of sending Chief Justice Vinson, a capable man and skilled negotiator of compromises and adjustments in public policy. Or maybe someone else in the White House circle had the original idea and he embraced it. Anyway it seemed like a wonderful plan—for it would show the country in the midst of the campaign that the President was running foreign policy himself and that closest to his heart was the matter of making a peaceful settlement with Russia at a time when the air is filled with talk of war.

Politically it was to be a ten-strike. For the Wallace vote is supposed to be based on our alleged unwillingness to keep the peace with Russia. Likewise the winning Democratic Party slogan of 1916, namely "peace and prosperity," seemed this year to be in need of much more emphasis on the peace sid—especially in the East, because the western farms appeared to be rolling in prosperity. Thus to win more votes in the East while the West was coming along more strongly anyway looked like the real strategy for the campaign.

Would Have Wrecked Marshall

So. Mr. Truman or someone in his behalf told the four major networks early last week to get ready to clear the air for a "nonpolitical" broadcast—which meant no need for putting up any of the meager funds of the Democratic National Committee. The networks were ready—and then something went wrong. There was the little matter of getting clearance with Secretary of State Marshall. Naturally both he in Paris and Undersecretary Lovett at home promptly made strenuous objections. They said it would undermine the negotiations now under way through the United Nations. It would undo all the work Marshall had done and would certainly offend the British and French because it couldn't really be handled without consulting them and if consulted they wouldn't consent.

So the idea was given up. The radio network officials kept mum and so did most everybody else. But it leaked. Last Friday it began to spread over Washington. This correspondent heard the story in confidence Friday morning from a prominent Republican who said:

"All this talk about Truman abdicating to Marshall on foreign policy is puzzling. Marshall doesn't know half the time where he stands. Somewhere in the 'palace guard' at the White House, someone tries to run foreign policy and butts in on Marshall. They had a plan the other night to send Vinson to Moscow to talk to Stalin. They didn't consult Marshall but asked the networks to line up the time on the air. Then they put it up to Marshall at Paris and naturally he raised cain. He is coming back here to straighten it out."

The published statements after the Marshall-Truman conferences on Saturday endeavor to give the impression that the scheme was disposed of early in the week after Marshall was consulted, but they make no mention of the reason why the networks were called in and arrangements made for time on the air before Marshall actually was consulted. It might have been assumed that he would go along with the plan if the President really insisted. But Mr. Truman didn't insist. He really trusts Marshall's judgment.

Now there has been a lot of criticism reaching the White House that the present mess is due to the fact that military men are in control of foreign policy and that a general at Berlin and a general at Moscow and a general at the head of the State Department cannot attain the flexibility needed in a difficult negotiation. The military mind is overned by fear psycholoy and usually negotiates behind guns. This often produces a distrust on the other side and makes diplomacy ineffective.

Administration Change Needed

While Mr. Truman has the greatest admiration for Marshall, there have been signs that he wished somehow the situation could be turned from one of near war to near peace. He knows that peace is better politics than war.

A few weeks ago, the idea of sending Vinson would have been capital. It could have been done with British and French consent as an unofficial exploratory mission before negotiations were broken off and hurried into the United Nations.

But the three-power policy, definitely established beyond recall now, is to get rid of the Berlin blockade by pressure from the United Nations once the problem is lodged there, it can hardly be sidetracked while one nation tries to make a deal separately. So a good idea not only comes to naught but reveals dramatically and conspicuously how lacking in judgment and perspicacity and tact Mr. Truman happens to be and how important it is to get as quickly as possible a new approach and a new line of thought in the White House if America is to avoid stumbling into a war that nobody wants.

These Days

Conservation

President Truman has been talking at considerable length in his Western speeches concerning conservation because in that part of the country that is important. There have been two theories concerning conservation: 1. That the government of the United States should protect the natural resources of the country that their life and usefulness may be prolonged; 2. That, as the present management of the Department of Interior holds, conservation should be a step toward state socialism.

The impression that President Truman gives is that the Republicans are opposed to conservation and that if Dewey is elected, the people in the West will suffer.

The fact that conservation started with the Republicans and this is their record:

The Bureau of Fisheries, started by President Grant; The Geological Survey, started by President Hayes; The Forest Service, The Bureau of Reclamation, The National Park Service, started by President Theodore Roosevelt; The Bureau of Mines, started by President Taft, The Alaskan Fisheries Control and the Range Control, started by President Hoover.

Conservation of oil began in Theodore Roosevelt's Administration and was expanded by Presidents Taft, Coolidge and Hoover.

As President Truman made particlar points concerning water storage, this is the record of the opposing party:

The Roosevelt Dam (Arizona) was started in President Theodore Roosevelt's Administration, completed in President Taft's Administration;

The Coolidge Dam (Arizona) was started in President Harding's Administration and completed in President Hoover's Administration;

The Cove Creek Dam (Morris Dam, Tennessee). Engineering plans were ordered by President Hoover's Administration in 1929, construction recommended to Congress by Hoover, construction done in President F. D. Roosevelt's Administration;

The Hoover Dam (Colorado River in California-Nevada). Engineering plans ordered in Coolidge Administration, construction two-thirds completed in President Hoover's Administration, completed in President F. D. Roosevelt's Administration.

Engineering works connecting Hoover Dam with Southern California began in President Hoover's Administration, financed at his directon by the RFC, completed in President Roosevelt's Administration;

The Fort Peck Dam (Missouri River in Montana). Engineering started under President Hoover's Administration; construction in President F. D. Roosevelt's and President Truman's Administrations;

The Bonneville Dam (Columbia River in Washington and Oregon). Engineering started under President Hoover's Administration, construction under Presidents F. D. Roosevelt's and Truman's Administrations;

The Grand Coulee Dam (Columbia River in Washington). Recommended by Secretary Hoover in 1926, engineering work largely completed in President Hoover's Administration, construction completed in President F. D. Roosevelt's Administration;

McNary Dam (Columbia River drainage in Oregon). Recommended by Hoover, engineering work largely completed by President Hoover's Administration, construction started by President F. D. Roosevelt's Administration;

Central Valley Project (California). Recommended by President Hoover's Administration, engineering work initiated in Hoover Administration, partly constructed in President Roosevelt's and Truman Administrations. President Hoover recommended expansion of Reclamation Service into these larger works.

It is not necessary in this or a political campaign to distort the facts, which are usually available in any reference book. The fact is that both parties and the Administrations of many states, both Republican and Democratic, have done a considerable work in recent years for conservation. For instance, the growth of the Forest Service from 89,200,000 acres in 1906 under President Theodore Roosevelt had increased, by 1932, to 140,200,000 acres under President Herbert Hoover in 179,400,000 acres under President Truman. It is quite possible that the Forest reserves are now too large. This is a question under debate in some states, which find that too much property is being taken off the tax roll.

Such a question need not be discussed in heat as it is subject to realistic consideration on the basis of fact. Also, many areas are neglected, once they are taken off the tax roll, because there is not enough money to keep them properly serviced. That, too, needs considerable study and thought. But it does not require vituperation, distortion and falsehood. There are no profits in that.

Just Between Us

Don't Carry On Feud With Ex-Date; It Is Futile Fight

By NANCY MOTTRAM

Nancy Mottram

(Q) "Dear Nancy: A boy I went with for almost a year began going with my best friend after our break-up. We often go out on double dates now, and it's a little embarrassing for both of us. I realize that silly to hold a grudge, but I don't know how to break the ice and he has not been friendly ever since we said goodbye. What can I do to fix things up?"

(A) Your double dates will continue to be torture until you and he decide to call off your silent feud. You don't have to call him aside and give him a Dutch-uncle talk to tell him how silly it is, but you can win him back as a friend gradually if you try. Begin being pleasant and addressing your remarks to him, too, instead of concentrating your attention on your date and your girl friend. He'll finally see the light, figure out that you're doing your bit to let bygones be bygones, and cooperate.

• — • — •

(Q) "Dear Nancy: My buddy's sister is having a friend of hers up for a visit in about two weeks, and he asked me to date her while she's here. At first, I said yes, but then decided I was being too hasty, and told him I'd decide after she got here. But his sister had already written her, told her the plans and mentioned my name. I don't see how I can get out of it, but I'd like to. Can you tell me what I could do?"

(A) You've given your promise, and it looks as though you're trapped. You might wangle yourself out of it after she gets here, but your friends would look on it as a low trick. Since it's only for two days, you'd better grin and bear it. In fact, you may be surprised and very glad that you'd kept your original agreement.

• — • — •

(Q) "Dear Nancy: I've had two or three dates with a fellow and although we've had a good time, he doesn't believe in dating a girl very often or seeing her too much. I found out that had been interested in one girl but she jilted him. Since then he won't take the chance of being fond of anyone else. I'd like to change his mind, but how?"

(A) If you show him he means a lot to you, he'll disappear from your life as fast as he can. Don't treat him as your own personal property. Don't mention "steady" to him. When he's forgotten his suspicion that you're playing a game, he may regain his self-confidence and eventually realize that he won't be off course if he finds he can trust you and be fond of you.

Nancy will answer as many questions as possible in her column. Write her in care of this newspaper.

Work To Begin On Flood Control Within 10 Days

Notice will be received by the contractor from the Army Engineers today to start work on construction of four pressure conduits of the Cumberland-Ridgeley flood control project, City Attorney Thomas B. Finan told the Mayor and Council yesterday.

Finan said the contractor will have ten days in which to get the work underway.

The four conduits, located at Franklin, Knox, Fear and Wincow Streets, were bid in by the Union Foundation Corporation, Union, N J., for $273,914.50.

All legal barriers have been cleared, Finan said, with the exception of two rights of entry on State Roads Commission and Baltimore and Ohio Railroad property. However, the engineers have been assured that the rights of entry will be granted.

The question of local labor for the project was raised and while the federal government does not make contracts with a city in that regard, local wage rates will prevail, Finan said. Where possible, local labor will be used, he added.

Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz was authorized to go to Annapolis to make a further study of a proposed city employe pension plan. Buchholtz said he would, in all probability, ask Finan and City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson to accompany him. No date has been set for the trip.

The city voted to present jackets to the champions of the City Cradle League. Cost is estimated at $125

A proclamation issued by Mayor Thomas S. Post set October 14 as "Oil Progress Day," in an effort to show progress made by the oil industry.

An application for a permit to build a 2000-gallon underground storage tank by the Standard Oil Company was referred to the city engineer and the fire chief. The tank would be used exclusively by the Emery Motor Coach Lines and would be located on the W. Wallace McKaig property, facing South Centre Street. It would be a temporary structure for approximately six months, then removed to a permanent location.

Next Local Draft Quota To Be Examined Oct. 18

The next quota of Cumberland men to report for the armed forces pre-induction examinations will be three from Draft Board 28 who will be examined Tuesday, October 18, according to P. Emmett Fahey, head of the local draft boards.

Last week 14 local men, six from Board 28 and eight from Board 27, received mental and physical examinations at the Army Recruiting Station in the Postoffice Building Only three out of the 14 who reported, passed both the mental and physical tests, Lt. George J. Gocke, recruiter-in-charge, said. These three will be inducted only if blood tests, which have not been returned, are favorable.

Also examined last week were 10 men from Frostburg Board 30 and seven candidates from Oakland Board 47. From these 17 potential draftees, only five passed all examination including blood tests.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Do Girls Habitually Fall In Love With Strangers?

Answer: Yes. And worse still, some of them convince themselves that the stranger "must" return the feeling, even though he hardly knows they exist. They practice such "wishful thinking" to avoid facing their inability to solve the conflict between their desire to be loved and their unwillingness to recognize that they can get love only from an ordinary human being and will never meet the model of perfection who is the ideal of their dreams. Their imagination can invest a stranger with virtues no real man could have.

Do girls prefer men who "act indifferent"?

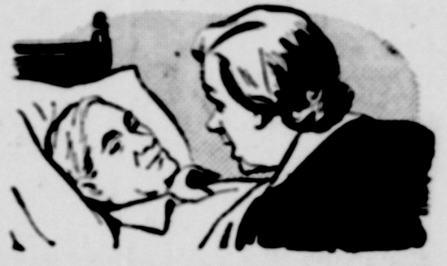
Answer: Not all girls do, of course, though "indifferent" men are apt to be more widely popular than men who are "easy to get." One reason, of course, is that the less attention a man pays a girl, the greater satisfaction it will give her self-esteem to break down his resistance. But I think another reason is a girl's instinctive dislike of a man she thinks she can wind around her finger. The average woman is more eager than she may admit to find a man who is his own master—and who has it in him to be hers, if necessary.

Can Physical Injury Cause Neurosis?

Answer: Yes. "Traumatic" (injury) neurosis can be caused by any physical or mental shock that upsets your emotional balance. But if you do not get well, says Dr. John M. Moorhead, the important thing to know is whether you have found that being sick "gets" you something" — compensation, relief from a hated job, or the devotion of your family. In that case, it's your unconscious motives, not your symptoms, that need treatment. Traumatic neurosis may lead to a "nervous breakdown" or illness with no organic basis.

Is It Habitual For Old People To Be Bitter?

Answer: No, although the tendency is all too common and based on a widespread human failing. As old age approaches, many of us realize how many things we hoped for in our youth we have missed, and cannot bear to admit that in most cases this has been due to our own mistakes and weaknesses. So we "pass the buck" to someone else, and comfort our self-esteem with the idea that life has never given us a square deal. But unhappily we seldom can get back at those we think have wronged us, so we make our families the scapegoats.



Should you tell your loved ones "kind lies"?

Answer: Only in the rarest cases —such as that of someone with a fatal disease whose life might be shortened or who might be needlessly unhappy if he knew what was the matter with him. As a rule, the person you attempt to "save" will ultimately have to face the music anyhow, and be all the worse off because knowing you deceived him will make him feel he no longer can rely on you. Besides which, what you manage to convince yourself is kindness often really is unwillingness to take your share of the responsibility for what you try to hide.

Should a child be forced to face things he's afraid of?

Answer: Never. Once a child feels, with however little reason, that something is dangerous, your forcing him to face it will only convince him that you want him to be hurt, and so add a worse terror to the others. If he had full confidence in you, he probably would not be seriously afraid of anything or anybody to begin with, since a normal child who never has been badly hurt has unlimited faith in his parents' power to protect him. Deal with fears by finding where they came from and dispelling the impressions they are based on.

Progressives Ask Picket, Handbill Ordinance Repeal

Says Supreme Court Ruled Permits Illegal

The Mayor and Council were asked yesterday to repeal city ordinances restricting the passing of handbills and picketing. The request came from the Progressive Party of Allegany County who promised court action if immediate steps are not taken.

The demand for the repeals brought a retort from a local labor leader and the city promised an answer to the request at its session next Monday.

F. Patrick Allender, business agent for the local AFL Carpenter's Union, heatedly told Progressive Party representatives that the move "is an attempt to belittle labor and swing some of its members to a new political party."

Have Three Spokesmen

William Boyd Coleman, chairman of the Progressives in Allegany county; James Stewart Martin, Baltimore, chairman of the Maryland Progressive Party, and Attorney I Duke Avnet, Baltimore and this city, legal advisor, appeared for the party at yesterday's session.

Martin told the council that in organizing a political party certain difficulty is encountered. He explained the party's opposition to the two ordinances and said the question is whether the handbill ordinance applies directly to a commercial enterprise or a legitimate political party.

Avnet said that the Supreme Court has ruled both that requirements for permits to pass handbills or to picket are illegal and said that the ordinances interfered with the freedom of speech, press and the freedom of expression.

Avnet said that the ordinance covering handbills requires an applicant to give his name, address, fingerprints and a picture and be under the supervision of the Police Department.

He cited the Federal Civil Rights Statutes which says that no authority can use the power of office to oppress people or their civil rights.

Can Correct Laws

"We are not trying to intimidate the Mayor and Council," Avnet said, "but we came here because you can correct these laws.

"We ask that the ordinances be repealed, and if they are not, we will take action by injunctive proceedings in court."

Allender's blast came after the Progressive delegates had presented their arguments.

"This is a political attempt to belittle labor unions in an attempt to swing some members to a new political party," he asserted.

"If they (the Progressives) were sincere, they would have been at our meeting last Sunday night."

Allender referred to a meeting of labor groups Sunday night at which plans were laid to support Democratic candidates and to "get out the vote."

Allender lashed out at what he called an "obvious attempt" to build up the prestige of the Progressive Party at this time. He said the move was one to "discredit labor", implying "we're not on our toes in trying to rescind these ordinances."

"Crackpot" Notice

Allender referred to the visit of the Freedom train and the passing of the handbills by the Progressives calling attention to the fact that Sen. Glen H. Taylor is to speak here.

"We paid money to get the Freedom train here. Then my son brings home a handbill and told me 'Some man said to give this to our parents.'"

Allender called the handbill a notice "that some crackpot was going to speak here."

Allender demanded to know if the hearing next week will be a public meeting.

"We will be here in force," he said, "and bring a local lawyer to repeal the laws. We don't have to go out of town," he added.

Avnet, who mistakingly called Allender "Mr. Stutzman," then apologized when corrected by the local labor leader, said the party is not making an effort to belittle labor and added that it would welcome representation by labor at the hearing next Monday.

Avnet brought in the Taylor rally here at the State Armory next Monday night and asked if any special permission would be needed to use a sound truck. City Attorney Thomas B. Finan said that current procedure would be followed and the permit granted.

Festival Of Tabernacles Starts Sunday At Sundown

The Jewish festival of Sukos or Tabernacles, the most joyful on its calendar, begins at sundown Sunday, October 17. Reform Jews will observe the festival for seven days and Orthodox and Conservative Jews for eight. The Hebrew date is 15th of Tishri, 5709.

This festival is associated with the wanderings of the Israelites in the wilderness as told in the Biblical books of Exodus, Leviticus and Deuteronomy. It is also an ancient agricultural harvest festival.

Services are held in synagogues the first and last days of this festival. Children are dedicated in the religious schools and introduced to formal worship.

Oldtown Road To Be Widened

G. Bates Chaires, district engineer of the State Road Commission, has announced that a $60,000 widening project for 3.25 miles of Oldtown Road from the city limits southeastward will begin tomorrow.

Chaires said that the 15-foot concrete roadway will be widened to 22 feet by the addition of blacktop shoulders. The work will be done with State Road crews which will be augmented by some outside help. Equipment will be sent here from other points in the state to speed the project.

The commission hopes to blacktop the roadway its entire width next year, Chaires said. The widening will improve traffic conditions on the highway to the North Branch underpass, Chaires said.

Another Job Nears End

The widening, drainage and surfacing job from the Celanese plant to a point just beyond Cresaptown will be completed next week by the Cumberland Contracting Company, according to Chaires.

This work has resulted in the widening of the road in front of the Celanese plant to 48 feet. This is one of the widest roads in this district, Chaires said.

A detailed report on the $2,000,000 improvement to Route 40 between here and Frostburg was also made today by Chaires.

The first part of the job, including widening, draining and surfacing from the Cumberland city limits to Crystal Park has been completed.

The work on relocating and widening the bridge at Long is underway and the contractor will concentrate in this project, Chaires said.

Wet weather and a shortage of steel has delayed work on the big part of the huge project between the Six Mile House and Frostburg, according to Chaires.

The excavation wark called for removing 500,000 cubic yards of earth and so far half of this has been completed. The cost of the work between the Six Mile House and Frostburg is estimated at about $1,500,000 and it is 34 per cent completed.

Grading Half Done

Grading work is 50 per cent finished, drainage work is 40 per cent completed and Chaires said that before the project shuts down about December 15 it is hoped temporary surfacing for all types of through traffic will have been placed.

The contractor may do some small parts of the project during the winter and by this time next year the whole job will have been completed, Chaires said. The deepest cut 45 feet, is near Eckhart and the deepest fill is 34 feet, he added.

Just how soon the highway will be opened to all types of traffic is not known and depends a great deal upon the weather, Chaires said. Work was delayed last week due to several rainy days. Chaires commented that this year the working season for highway projects has been the worst in some time.

Teenagers Forfeit Bonds In Cycle Case

Dairy Austin Mangus, 15, 109 Reynolds Street, forfeited $6.45 bond in Trial Magistrates Court yesterday on a charge of allowing an unauthorized person to operate his motor bike. Arlene Buckley, 14, forfeited the same amount on a charge of driving the vehicle without a permit.

The pair was arrested Sunday by Sgt. Frank A. Shober at the corner of Reynolds Street and Central Avenue.

Finely chopped parsley added to a bread stuffing gives it excellent flavor; use about a quarter cup of the parsley to two cups of finely cubed day-old bread.

WELL FED—This well dressed dog won first prize as the oldest dog in the show at the second annual dog show held by the Cumberland Girl Scouts here Saturday. Perhaps his age is the reason his mistress, Judy Zimmerman, takes time out to give her pet a little nourishment. Incidentally, that is not the way the canine generally eats his meals.

Eight Men Under Indictment Post Bonds For Trial

Eight men indicted by the October grand jury appeared in Circuit Court yesterday and posted $500 bond each for hearings later.

They included Richard W. Hixon, Howard B. Morehead and Fred J. Hillebrecht, trustees of the Maccabees Club on Bedford Street, on charges of maintaining slot machines.

Paul Samuel Corbin on a charge of forgery. He is accused of passing a check on N. R. Newcomb in the amount of $85. The check contained the notation that it was for one Holstein cow.

James E. Judy was indicted on charges of robbery and assault. He allegedly caused trouble at the Cresaptown American Legion home and robbed and assaulted Harold Limbert, the steward of the club.

Garland R. Hutzell and Ralph Edward Hutzell were indicted on a charge of selling alcoholic beverages to a minor. It is charged that they sold a bottle of beer to a girl under 21 years of age.

Franklin S. Cutter was indicted on charges of breaking and entering the store of Leo McNeill at Klondike.

James P. Martin, who had been indicted on a charge of false pretense in passing two bad checks, was given a hearing before Associate Judge Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., and sentence was deferred.

The court stated that due to Martin's poor physical condition it is necessary for the accused to go to the state sanatorium at Sabillasville. He was ordered to make restitution in the amount of $110, which he had obtained by passing the two checks.

Raymond L. Williams filed suit for his own use and the use of the Philadelphia Fire and Marine Insurance Company against Brady S. Vetters as a result of a traffic accident May 16.

Williams claims that Vetters was negligent in operating his car and crashed into the Williams machine at the intersection of Greene and Lee Street. The insurance company paid Williams $274.98 for damages to his car and the suit is to recover this amount, plus additional damages. The suit asks $500 damages.

Broadway Changes Its Tune—and Its Dress

It took a Billy Rose to make the most daring and delightful switch in Broadway night life by dolling up his Diamond Horseshoe to the tune of $100,000 in New Look gowns, murals and candelabra. He not only opened New York eyes, but see what he opened on his Horseshoe stage—they're pretty, too. "Violins Over Broadway" is the sweetest serenade since Strauss wrote his first waltz.

New System For City Engineer Office Proposed

A proposal by Police Commissioner William V. Keegan to use a new system in the city engineer's office to prevent confusion when plats for new additions and the like are presented, was approved yesterday by the Mayor and Council.

City Attorney Thomas B. Finan and City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer were appointed by Mayor Thomas S. Post to consider the proposal.

Keegan's suggestion came after the plat of a South View Terrace addition was tabled last week and requests for three improvements were submitted to the council today.

The Parent-Teacher's Association of East Side School asked that a portion of East Street near the school be black topped. William A. Deremer, president of the P-TA, made the request.

Residents of Waverly Terrace asked the repair and black topping of North Waverly Terrace due to its proximity to Baltimore Street and the business district. Children, by the hundreds, the petition stated, use the street and on rainy days it constitutes a hazard to their safety.

Glenora Addition at Valley Road had a number of requests. In a petition, residents there cited there is no garbage collection; that Forest Avenue and Valley Road in the city limits have roads full of holes and ragged shoulders forming a driving hazard and forcing residents to hire a bulldozer to open the driveway; that there are no street lights at the city or school bus stops; that there is a need for street lights at the bus stops, at the intersection of Forest Avenue and Valley Road, at Shobe's Service Station, and at least two on Forest Avenue.

The petition also asked re-consideration for extending city water to the addition. Rains the past summer have made the supply adequate, the petition says, but that condition may change next year.

All requests were referred to Street Commissioner Edgar Reynolds.

The proposed city plumbing ordinance, scheduled to be passed today, was deferred until next Monday to enable interested parties to make a further study.

Mrs. Sarah Hart

died in Europe. She was one of the first members of the post auxiliary.

Authorities who found her dead in her first floor apartment last night said they investigated after a neighbor called police headquarters and informed them Mrs. Hart had not been seen since Saturday.

Police said several bottles of milk and newspapers which had collected at the front door of the apartment caused the neighbor, whom they did not identify, to become fearful.

Authorities said Mrs. Hart, who is survived by two daughters, has resided alone since the death of her husband several years ago. She was last seen Saturday at noon when she talked with Mrs. Joseph Birmingham, who resided on the second floor of the apartment house.

Mrs. Hart had been suffering from a heart condition for several years, friends said.

Two surviving daughters are Miss Bertha Hart, Aberdeen, Md., and Mrs. Russell Goetz, Birmingham, Ala. Mrs. Frank Lee Carl, former resident of Cumberland but now of Hagerstown, is a sister of Mrs. Hart.

Mrs. Hart was a native of Frostburg. She was the former Miss Sarah Cook.

City Will Ask $20,000 To Aid In Sewage Work

Twenty thousand dollars in federal aid for engineering services in the development of general plans for sewage disposal here will be asked by the Mayor and Council.

The suggestion of the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission was accepted at the Council meeting yesterday after a letter from Harold W. Smith, secretary of the commission, was read.

The city has had under consideration the erection of a new sewage disposal plant and the federal aid is offered to municipalities on a "first-come, first-served" basis to aid in the disposal program and to eliminate or control the pollution of waterways.

The council also voted to pay $500 for written preparation of a city charter by Dr. Carl N. Everstine, of the Department of Legislative Reference of the State of Maryland. Isaac Hirsch, chairman of the City Charter Commission, explained in a letter to the council, that the work will involve several trips here by Dr. Everstine.

The report of the Police Department for the past month showed 180 arrests with fine totaling $1,024. Twenty-six fires were reported by the department with damage from medium to heavy.

A financial report showed balances of $539,365.09 in the general account; $249,323.58 in the water operating account; $36,629.61 in the general improvement bond account; $34.72 in the paving bond account; $631.49 in the flood account; and $1,733.02 in the sewer bond account.

Cleveland Wins World Series In Sixth Game

SPORTS GRILL

by Pat Robinson

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(INS)—The era of wonderful financial nonsense in sports is about over.

Lavish expenditure of dough for little or no return has begun to pall on owners of race tracks, baseball, football and hockey clubs. And they appear to have begun a collective movement to cut down on the overhead before they are all underfoot.

Race tracks are still hanging up $50,000 and $100,000 purses but the track owners are looking for a way out. They didn't mind so long as the sucker public was walking up to the mutuel windows and dropping its dough.

But when both attendance and the "handle" began to fall off together, the owners began to think that maybe a $25,000 purse wasn't to be sneezed at after all.

Strangely enough, the harness people are the one outfit which shows no signs of retrenchment. And for a sound financial reason. Their attendace and mutuel figures have been going up where the runners have been going down.

A few years ago the trotters and pacers were glad to compete for anywhere from $100 to $500. Even the immortal Greyhound, greatest trotter of all time earned only $38,952 by winning 32 races over a span of seven years in the '30s.

Nowadays a first class pacer or trotter can earn twice as much in a single season.

But elsewhere along the sports line there is a general tightening of the owners' purse strings. Ball clubs don't like to pay anywhere from $25,000 to $75,000, as they have done, for an untried high school boy just to get his name on a contract.

This bonus system has caused bitter resentment among veteran ball players. Only the other day Johnny Sain, ace pitcher of the Braves, told us he worked about 10 years in baseball learning his trade and didn't get a total salary equivalent to what the Braves paid a young untried pitcher they recently signed.

These bonus payments are out of proportion to the kid's worth. A youngster would have to be a winning star for several years to pay off on the investment in him.

Salaries have gone up everywhere but sports salaries have soared out of all proportion.

Even the fans have begun to resent some of the bonus payments. They appreciate a club trying to give them the best available entertainment. But they think it silly to pay a kid more for merely signing a contract than many a fan can earn by hard work in 10 or 15 years.

Football already has learned a costly lesson in the fight to sign up college boys. Not so many years ago All-American stars were glad to play pro ball for $50 or $100 a game. Nowadays an outstanding star expects to sign a three-year contract for at least $50,000.

Yes, boys, the honeymoon is over. So is the era of wonderful nonsense in sport.

"Bugs" Baer Series Notes

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Lou Boudreau almost upset the law of supply and demand by making two lemonades out of one Lemon.

But the sweet pitcher with the sour name just couldn't go the distance. Gene Bearden finished the game and proved the rule that is the exception. A baseball manager should start his second pitcher first and live forever.

That was also accurate of Southworth who commenced with Voiselle and finished with Warren Spahn. That's putting your best foot forward in the wrong shoe.

It was four double plays that pulled the cat's paw away from the chestnuts. They accumlated the astonishing total of nine Cleveland double-plays in one series. That saved the series oftener than the old homestead in "Down East."

We are not going to establish a list of statistics on this pale October tournament. They would merely prove that the greatest of them all is still Babe Ruth.

Now you know why the Braves preferred to lose to the Indians instead of the Red Sox. The three-day take in the Cleveland Stadium was $1,100,000. If that's hay I never saw it on pitch-forks.

Keltner finally got his second hit of six games. It was a wormy little wriggler in the grass that squirmed away from Spahn.

Good base-running by the Braves might have tied up the game and the series with the same piece of string about ninety feet long. But when they held Elliott on third base it was one of those blunders that don't show up in the error stack.

Anyway, if the best team didn't win it finished second. There isn't much to play over in the 1948 tournament except Stewart's call on the Cleveland pick-off classic.

The picture shows that Masi was out. Well, if you order that picture by the dozen they will also give you a hand-tinted enlargement fit for framing.

You can hang it over that wet spot on the kitchen wall.

Navy Gridders Prep For Missouri Game

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 11 (AP)—This was largely a "think" day for Navy's football team, preparing to meet Missouri in Baltimore this Saturday.

Back from a stinging three-touchdown defeat at the hands of Duke, the midshipmen worked out briskly, then reviewed the mistakes which proved costly last Saturday.

Ability to capitalize on Navy errors eased the Blue Devils' problem, Coach George Sauer asserted. That, plus the fact the Middies were unable to sustain any sort of offensive.

Sauer also conferred with his coaching aides, and the word of two of them did nothing to brighten this week's outlook. Backfield mentor Vic Bradford and assistant coach Ray Swartz watched Missouri upset Southern Methodist and branded the Tigers as something to behold.

Sauer said he will make adjustments in both offense and defense to cope with the game Don Faurot teaches at Missouri. He has no immediate plans for personnel changes, although toying with some possibilities.

"We want to make sure they would work out all right first," Sauer said.

Stags Sign Zaslofsky

CHICAGO, Oct. 11—(INS)—The Chicago Stags of the Basketball Association of America announced today they have signed Max Zaslofsky, last year's B.A.A. scoring champion, for the 1948-49 campaign.

Zaslofsky was signed for what Stag officials called "a substantial increase in salary." He was believed to be getting $7,000 last year.

City May Enter New Minor Loop

Council Approves Meeting Delegates

A meeting for the purpose of organizing a new Class C baseball league will be held Friday evening at the George Washington Hotel in Winchester, Va., and Cumberland will be represented at the session.

At yesterday's meeting of the Mayor and City Council, Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz read a letter from the Chamber of Commerce of Harrisonburg, Va., inviting Cumberland officials to the Friday get-together.

Taking cognizance of the fact that Cumberland is large enough to be represented in organized baseball, Buchholtz highly recommended an effort to secure a team and franchise in such a league.

Upon the suggestion of City Attorney Thomas B. Finan, the council voted to authorize a Cumberland newspaper delegation to represent the city at the Winchester confab.

Also invited to attend the organizational conference are representatives from Keyser, Martinsburg, Piedmont and Charles Town, W. Va.; Westernport, Frederick and Hagerstown, Md.; Chambersburg, Gettysburg, Hanover and Waynesboro, Pa.; Charlottesville, Clifton Forge, Covington, Front Royal, Harrisonburg, Luray, Strasburg, Staunton, Winchester, Woodstock and Waynesboro Va.

Cumberland has not been represented in organized baseball since 1932 when the city was a part of the Class C Middle Atlantic League.

Bassler, Foxwell Win Golf Match

BALTIMORE, Oct. 11 (AP)—Charlie Bassler and Stuart Foxwell of Rolling Road carded a best-ball score of 65 today to win the Middle Atlantic P.G.A. pro-amateur golf tournament at the Green Spring Valley Hunt Club.

Bassler, pro at Rolling Road, shot a two-under par 70, and his amateur partner carded a 76.

The best round of the day, a 68, was shot by Ralph Beach, Suburban Club pro.

Meeting Postponed

The regularly scheduled meeting of the Western Maryland and Eastern West Virginia Football Officials Association which was to be held tonight has been postponed it was announced by President John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh last night.

Holmes cracked Lemon's first pitch for a single to center. Doby came in fast for Dark's liner to right. Torgeson blasted a double to the right field corner, and Holmes was forced to hold up at third. Elliott walked to load bases and Bearden came in to pitch for Indians. Clint Conatser, rookie righthanded batter, went in to hit for Rickert. Conatser sent a long fly to Tucker in dead center, and Holmes scored easily after the catch and Torgeson took third. Elliott remained at first. Phil Masi, another right handed hitter, batted for Salkeld. Masi rattled a double off the left field wall scoring Torgeson and sending Elliott to third. Bob Kennedy replaced Mitchell in left field for the Indians. Mike McCormick slapped a bouncer back to Bearden who threw him out at first.

Two runs, three hits, no errors, two left

NINTH INNING INDIANS

M. McCormick moved over to left field for Boston in place of Rickert and Conatser went into play center field. Masi replaced Salkeld behind the plate. Bearden struck out. Kennedy also went down swinging. Doby also struck out as Spahn retired the side on strikes.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

NINTH INNING BRAVES

Stanky worked the count to three and two, then coaxed his third base on balls of the game. Connie Ryan went in to run for Stanky. Sisti attempted to sacrifice and sent a low pop in front of the plate which Hegan grabbed for the out and then threw to Gordon who covered first, to double up Ryan. Holmes sent a long fly to Kennedy who caught the ball while backing up near the left field wall.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Montreal Takes Little Series Title

Royals Cop Fifth Game By 7 To 2

MONTREAL, Oct. 11 (AP)—A three-run pinch triple by Oscar Grimes and tight pitching by Jack Banta and Frank Laga carried Montreal's Royals to a 7-2 victory over St. Paul today and won them the little world series, four games to one.

In soggy, damp weather, a crowd of 11,590 saw the Royals, International League champions, sweep their fourth straight contest to capture the series from their American Association rivals. Oddly, both teams are farm clubs of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The Royals were trailing 2-1 going into the sixth. Then they broke out with five runs to clinch the game and set.

The rally was started against Pat McGlothin, who had pitched the Saints to victory in the first tilt.

Jimmy Bloodworth opened the big inning with a scratch hit to short. Chuck Connors and Bob Morgan walked to fill the bases. Mike Sandlock's rap behind second could not be handled in time by Bob Ramazotti and Bloodworth scored.

Manager Wally Alston then yanked McGlothin and sent in Morrie Martin. Clay Hopper countered this move by sending in Grimes, former big leaguer, to bat for Banta. Grimes drove a hard hit into centerfield. It looked like it would only be good for a single but the ball bounded over centerfielder Earl Naylor's head and rolled to the fence for a base-clearing three-bagger. That was the ball game. Lou Welaj singled home Grimes with an insurance run.

Laga set the Saints down without a hit in the last three innings. Banta, in winning his second series game, gave up only three hits in the first six frames. Montreal collected 10 safeties.

Beall and Flintstone will both be seeking their first wins. Ed Thompson will referee the Frostburg game and Ray Middleton will be arbiter at the 'Coney contest.

5 Marks Broken In 1948 Series

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)—Cleveland's Indians, who won the world series today, earned an estimated $6,772.05 each for the six days of action—a record series payment.

That figure is based on the assumption that 34 players will cut into the winning club's share of $328,928.39 of the gate receipts of the first four games.

The record payoff is one of five world series marks broken during the 1948 classic.

Under present baseball rules, the number of shares voted by a world series club is secret until announced by Commissioner A. B. Chandler. However, it has been reported that the Cleveland players cut their melon 34 ways.

The $6,772.05 payoff — approximately $1,100 a day for each of the six games—betters the 1935 check of $6,544.76 to each member of the victorious Detroit Tigers. That year the players' pool also included $100,000 from the sale of broadcast rights. That money now goes to the baseball players' pension fund.

The losing Boston Braves share this year is estimated at $4,651.51. The record payoff to a losing player is the $4,829.40 gained by each member of the 1941 Brooklyn Dodgers.

Records broken:

Highest receipts for one game—$378,778.73 (fifth game Oct. 10 at Cleveland).

Largest attendance for one game—86,288 (fifth game Oct. 10 at Cleveland). (Old record, 81,897 set in fourth game Oct. 9 at Cleveland). Also record for single game.

Most chances accepted by a third baseman (six game series) — Bob Elliott, Boston, 25 chances (11 putouts, 14 assists). Old record set by Heinie Zimmerman, New York (NL) 23, 1917.

Winning players share—$6,772.05. Old records $6,544.76 to Detroit Tigers of 1923. (Tiger amount included $100,000 radio rights).

Players pool — $548,213.99. Old record $488,005.74 to St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees in 1943.

DiMaggio Gets $85,000

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(INS)—The New York Daily News stated in a dispatch from Cleveland tonight that outfielder Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees has signed his 1949 contract for $85,000.

The News dispatch added, however, that President Dan Topping of the Yankees refused to confirm the signing at this time.

Meeting Planned

Members of the Wellersburg softball team, champions of the County Softball League, will hold a special meeting tomorrow night at 7:30 at the school house it was announced last night. All players are requested to be present.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—The supreme court today refused to review a California horse racing board order which suspended W. L. Sandstorm's license to train race horses.

Gene Bearden Saves 4 To 3 Contest In 8th

Double Plays Help Tribe; Gordon Homers

By GAYLE TALBOT

BOSTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Thanks to stout-hearted relief pitching by Gene Bearden in the tense closing minutes of play, the Cleveland Indians staggered through to a 4-3 victory over the Boston Braves in the sixth and deciding game of the world series today.

In winning its first championship in 28 years, the Tribe also was the beneficiary of a lucky double play in the ninth inning which probably saved Bearden from Serious trouble.

One moment the crowd of 40,103 was sitting on the edge of the seats, expectant of a rally that would square the series at three games apiece, and carry the play-off right down to a seventh contest tomorrow.

The next moment it was all over.

Double Play Hurts

Eddie Stanky, a steady little character right through the series, opened the ninth by drawing a walk. Connie Ryan ran for him. Then came the heartbreaker. Sibby Sisti went in to pinch-hit for Warren Spahn, who had done a brilliant piece of relief chunking for two innings, and attempted to sacrifice Ryan to second with the tying run.

Instead, he bunted under Bearden's pitch and lofted the ball straight up, directly in front of the plate. Catcher Jim Hegan snared the horsehide and fired it to Joe Gordon, who was covering first, for a double play.

The Braves were dead injuns. Tommy Holmes, hero of Boston's victory in the opening game, lined out to Bob Kennedy in left to end the contest.

Only the previous inning, the eighth, the Braves brought the customers to their feet by slugging Bob Lemon, Cleveland's starting chucker, from the hill and scoring twice to draw winthin a run of the Indians, who apparently had been coasting to an easy win behind the big righthander.

When Bearden inherited the ugly situation, the bags were loaded with Braves and only one was out. Two Bostons scored on a long fly to center by Clint Conatser and Phil Masi's ringing double off the left field wall. Both Conatser and Masi were pinchhitters. But that was all as the great southpaw bore down to get Mike McCormick on an infield roller.

Gordon Hits Homer

Cleveland scored its first three runs off Bill Voiselle, one of them a home run over the left field wall by Joe Gordon in the sixth. Spahn, doing his second relief chore in as many days, gave up the last Indian marker in the eighth, before he got his bearings.

It proved, of course, to be the winning run of the series. Ken Keltner, a terrible batting bust in the first five games, set it up by smashing an infield hit off Spahn's glove. Thurman Tucker, who replaced Walt Judnich in the Indian outfield for the closing tussle, pushed Keltner around to second with a smack to center, and Ed Robinson drove him home with a single to right.

That, as it turned out, was the last the Indians saw of Spahn. He struck out Hegan to end the inning, and in the ninth set down Bearden, Bob Kennedy and Larry Doby in succession with his elusive curves. In yesterday's game at Cleveland he struck out five of the last six Indians to face him.

After doubles by Dale Mitchell and Manager Lou Boudreau had put Cleveland in front in the third, Boston tied it up in the fourth.

Bob Elliott got on when Lemon failed to field his dribbler down the third base line. He reached second as Bill Salkeld worked Lemon for a walk. Mike McCormick brought hi marouund with a smash through the box into center field, Elliott barely sliding in under Tucker's throw to the plate.

Double Play Fails

Gordon, who had made only three previous hits in the series, opened the sixth with a towering homer over the left barricade at a point about 350 feet from the plate. It was Joe's 33rd circuit smash of the year.

The Indians eked out their second score of the inning when Tucker drew a walk, moved around on Robinson's sharp single to right and raced home as Hegan hit into a forceout. Actually, it should have been a double play to end the inning. Stanky took Elliott's peg at second for the force and fired to first in plenty of time for the double, but Earl Torgeson left the ball bounce from his mitt.

Voiselle gave away for a pinchhitter in the seventh after having allowed seven hits.

Holmes opened the inning by pelting a single to center. Al Dark flied out, but Torgeson rapped a sharp double down the right field line to hustle Holmes around to third and inject furious activity in the Cleveland bullpen.

Lemon, unable to settle down, walked Elliott to fill the bases—the fourth time the Boston third sacker had reached first in the game. That was when Boudreau called a halt and wig-wagged for Bearden.

For a moment it looked as if the ball might clear the fence, but it banged against the boards high up and bounced back as Torgeson roared home and Elliott reached third.

Then, with the tying and winning runs aboard, Bearden forced Mike McCormick to rap weakly to the box, and he tossed him out with much to spare. The series was over, except for Boston's brief flare-up in the ninth.

CAR POLISHING IS A JOB FOR AN EXPERT!

You'll agree that polishing a car is a lot of work . . . especially when you could spend the time golfing, fishing, or just loafing.

But there's more to it than that: A polish job won't last very long if the car isn't completely cleaned before polishing.

And that's where we shine! We know just how much cleaning is required to remove all traces of dirt and road film.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 11—(INS)—Howard Hughes has made an offer to Luise Rainer to return to the screen.

Ava Gardner

Luise says that no deal has been signed, and she cannot discuss it yet. She's been off the screen for such a long time, she wants to be sure that she gets just the right picture before she ventures a movie comeback.

This summer she toured the theaters in "Joan Of Lorraine" for the second year, and endeared herself to all the fans who saw her.

Rosemary De Camp darned near had heart failure when she discovered she had thrown the most important contract of her life in the incinerator.

The contract was for her to co-star with Bill Bendix in "The Life Of Riley," and because Rosemary lives so far away, Universal-International mailed it to her. When she failed to return it signed, the studio called up to find out what was wrong.

That's when Rosemary discovered the important paper had become mixed with some advertising mail and stashed in the incinerator. Fortunately she fished it out before the fire had been lighted.

The wonderful first editions that Frank Capra collected for so many years are going on sale in New York next month. Included among the copies is a rare Ben Jonson book.

Frank said: "I haven't enough time to devote to first editions. I feel they should be put to use." He also adds that collecting old books is an expensive hobby.

Chatter in Hollywood: Ava Gardner and Artie Shaw have been seeing each other secretly. A few nights ago they were in the back room of the Naples restaurant in Hollywood, and a few nights later they had cocktails together.

Those gay croqueters, Raymond Massey and Marcus Goodrich, will be lacking their favorite mallet partner, Kent Smith, for the next few weeks. Kent has just been assigned the lead in "Deadlock," the Richard Sale murder thriller.

I keep hearing the most amazing stories about Marlon Brando, who achieved such great success in "Streetcar Named Desire."

Seems he goes around New York unshaven, with his hair uncombed and in shabby clothes, riding a motorcycle with all the abandon of Keenan Wynn.

The story of his introduction to Katharine Hepburn is going the rounds. Seems Katie wanted to meet him. He was very indifferent. Finally, she was introduced, and told him how much she liked him, and he said: "What do you do, and who are you?"

•—•—•

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Martha Tilton, the radio singer, is still suffering from the painful attack of neuralgia which kept her off her show last week.

Julie Wilson, the singer, at the Dells with Mickey Rooney before he took off for the east, where he is scheduled to make personal appearances.

Edmund Gwenn is headed home after a checkup in a New York hospital.

Sitting quietly in a corner at the Beverly Tropics was Jennifer Jones and her boss David O. Selznick.

Clifton Webb is doing a Georgie Jessel, and devoting a whole chapter in his book "Apointment With Myself" to his boss Darryl Zanuck.

Norman Hover handing out the traditional champagne and cigars the day Johnny Johnston and Kathryn Grayson's baby was born. Johnnie went on with the show at Ciro's, although he stopped every few minutes to receive congratulations.

Peggy Cummins writes to say she'll be in Hollywood to spend Thanksgiving and there is no truth to the reports she is not returning.

Well, the new car Cara Williams is driving about town is the gift of her wealthy Pittsburgh admirer, Paul Sekora, construction engineer.

Fine as Judith Anderson is in "Medea," Hollywood producers have voted against filming it, because it is so tragic. So Judith will make it in London with English backing.

Van and Frances Heflin are in New York on business. Van is there to discuss a new radio show.

That's all today.

Opera Fund Sought

SALZBURG (AP) — An American opera star hopes to start a fund raising campaign in the United States to rebuild the war-damaged Vienna State Opera building. Maria Jeritza, who started her musical career in Vienna and went on to win world-wide fame at the Metropolitan in New York City, will confer with opera officials in Vienna later this month.

The Opera Building was erected nearly 90 years ago. During the last months of the war American bombers based in Italy, apparently trying for the Luftwaffe Headquarters across the street, scored direct hits with high explosive and incendiary bombs. In the resulting fire the interior of the building was gutted. There was also great loss in stage properties, settings and costumes.

According to legend, the rich Bunker Hill mine, in Idaho's Coeur d'Alene mining district, was discovered by a prospector's donkey.

YOU WOMEN WHO SUFFER HOT FLASHES then FEEL CHILLY-

Here's Good News!

Are you between the ages of 38 and 52 and going through that trying functional 'middle-age' period peculiar to women? Does this make you suffer from hot flashes, feel clammy, so nervous, irritable, weak? Then do try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms! It's famous for this!

Many wise 'middle-age' women take Pinkham's Compound regularly to help build up resistance against this distress.

Town Meeting To Argue Movies On Tonight's Program

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—America's Town meeting, the ABC weekly forum now also being televised to an east coast hookup as well as broadcast coast to coast, will argue about the movies Tuesday night in the second program under the combined transmission. The specific question: "How will television affect the motion pictures?" Time is the usual 8:30 p.m.

The argument will be carried forward by five speakers instead of the usual panel of four. Among those participating will be Mark Woods, president of ABC, and Paul Raiborn, vice president of Paramount pictures in charge of its television division.

When Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower makes his inaugural address at his formal installation as president of Columbia university in New York, two networke will handle his words. MBS has scheduled its relay for 3 p.m., while CBS will not put on its share until 5, and then from a recording.

Under Arrest, a who-dun-it, is not being brought back to the MBS list at 9:30 after all. The lone wolf continues right there some more.

A Columbus Day speaker on MBS at 4:45 is to be John E. Swift, supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus.

Progressive improvements in exploration and drilling methods since 1859, when the first commercial oil well was completed, have enabled the oil industry to produce for America's welfare and security more than 37 billion barrels of crude oil. Loaded in tank cars, this oil would make a trainload stretching 64 times around the earth.

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

The Republican Chuckle

John Crosby

Fulton Lewis jr.—this lead is going to sound a little like the opening of one of Thornton W. Burgess's Peter Rabbit stories — is a very happy man these days. He just can't keep from chuckling to himself. Well, not entirely to himself since his audience runs into the millions. There is a reason for Mr. Lewis's bubbling good humor. For ten years, the commentator has railed irritably at the New Deal and for all those years the voters persistently returned the Democrats to power. Now, unless all the polls are dead wrong, Mr. Lewis is at long last on the winning side.

Consequently his comments these days are interspersed with snorts and chuckles and a generally winsome air more appropriate to "The Great Gildersleeve" than to news, if that's the word for Mr. Lewis's special field. "Mr. Truman . . . was still pounding away at the theme of reclamation—huh huh huh—and how the Republicans of the Eightieth Congress crucified the West—huh huh—by cutting the heart out of the whole reclamation picture." That "huh huh" is the best I can do with that chuckle. It isn't a "ho ho" or a "ha ha"; it's a dry, resonant, thoroughly Republican chuckle.

• — • — •

The Mutual Broadcasting System bills Lewis as a man who brings "the news"; Mr. Lewis himself tells us "I'll have the news for you in just a moment." So while most people would refer to him as a commentator rather than a reporter, I think it's pertinent to examine the way Lewis plays the news.

The other evening, for example, Lewis declared that the "burning question" of the moment was how the United Mine Workers were going to vote. There were some other burning questions that night but that was the one that inflamed Lewis.

He then reported John L. Lewis's remarkable tirade against President Truman, delivered before 3,000 U. M. W. delegates. However, he said, John L. Lewis's masterful invective was not so important as the "unanimous acclaim" it received from the delegates, a statement which clashed sharply with printed reports. News stories in the "New York Herald Tribune" and "The New York Times"—both papers, like Mr. Lewis, supporting Governor Dewey's candidacy—reported that the delegates did NOT appear to share Mr. Lewis's distaste for President Truman.

The Lewis speech, said Fulton Lewis (no relation), may mean defeat for President Truman in West Virginia and also defeat for the Democratic Senatorial candidate in that state. That is a remarkable statement. Never once in that speech did John L. Lewis come out in support of Governor Dewey or the Republican party. Even if he had, as Mr. Lewis (Fulton again), was forced to admit, John L. Lewis had not been able to swing many, if any, miners's votes to the Republican cause in either the 1940 or the 1944 Presidential elections. However, this year, said Fulton Lewis, was different because the United Mine Workers had twice during the year received heavy fines at the hands of the Administration.

• — • — •

Well, it's interesting to note that Elmer Davis, that extraordinarily able and conscientious reporter, pointed out that same evening in his commentary that it was not President Truman who levied the fines against the U. M. W., it was Judge T. Alan Goldsborough. (Mr. Davis thereby saved me the trouble. If he hadn't made that distinction, I would have been duty bound to make it myself.)

The John L. Lewis speech, certainly a Page One Story in any one's book, not only led off but took up one-third of Fulton Lewis's time that evening. To compare his news play with that of others, let's examine the lead stories the same night of the two ablest reporters on the air—Edward R. Murrow and Elmer Davis. Both led off, as did the "New York Herald Tribune" and "The New York Times," with the foreign situation, in particular President Truman's recall of Secretary of State Marshall, and both devoted the larger portion of their fifteen-minute comments to this situation.

Both men, of course, reported the John L. Lewis speech but cut it down to somewhere near its proper size. Davis, incidentally, balanced the story with another item, which in a spirit of fairness he plucked from the back pages, to the effect that President Truman had received assurances of support from eighteen A. F. of L. leaders.

I can't do full justice to Fulton Lewis in one column and I shall return later not only to Mr. Lewis but to other election coverage on the air. However, I should like to make one more observation. At the moment there appear to be more Republicans than Democrats in the country. The majority of listeners, I suspect, are in general political sympathy with Fulton Lewis and that majority I particularly urge to get their election coverage elsewhere. Mr. Lewis may lull Republicans into such a sense of false security that no one will bother to vote.

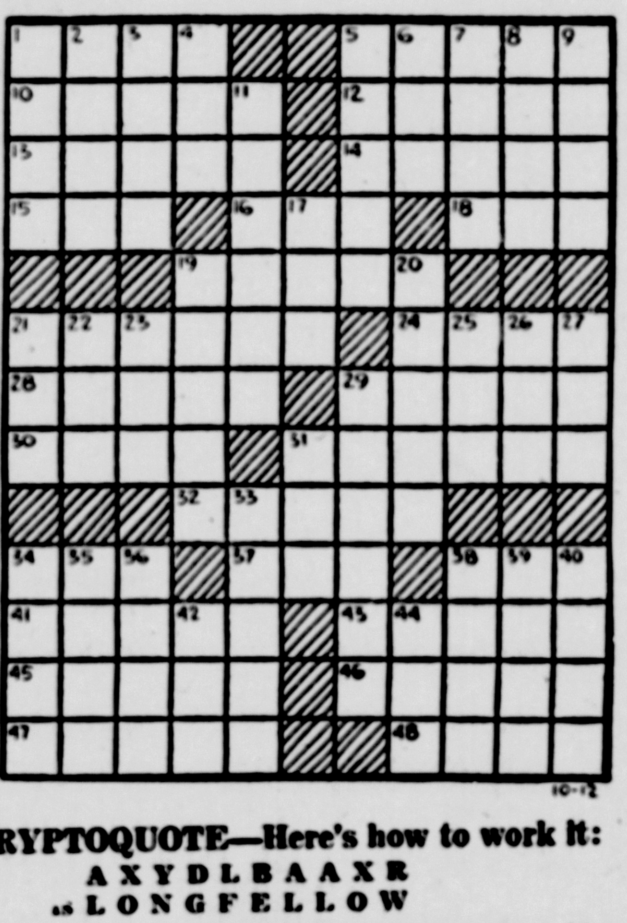
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Stock Market Drifts Slightly Lower In Usual Dull Pre-Holiday Session

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)—In a dull pre-holiday session, the stock market today drifted lower by fractions to around a point.

Here and there a few selected issues pushed upward for small gains against the general trend.

Some of the oils were fairly and generally higher, while rails and steels sold off for the most part. Motors, metals, aircraft and air-lines were narrowly mixed.

Brokers felt the action of today's market was inconclusive. It was in line with expectations for a Monday market before a holiday—Columbus Day when the stock exchange will be closed—and in the absence of any foreign or domestic news developments that might have a market-wide effect.

Oils were mostly higher with Standard Oil (NJ) ending up ½ at 78¾.

Panhandle Eastern Pipeline jumped up 4 points to 66, a new high for the year. Directors declared a regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents and one-half share of Hugoton Production Co., organized September 22 by Panhandle, for each outstanding share of Panhandle.

A spokesman for railroads announced they would ask the Interstate Commerce Commission tomorrow for a five per cent freight rate increase in addition to the eight per cent boost already requested of the I.C.C. The request will be accompanied by a motion asking that the eight per cent advance, which the roads petitioned for October 1, be put into effect immediately. Higher revenues, it was said, are needed to offset wage and other increases.

On the declining side were Nickel Plate 86, Illinois Central 35½, Union Pacific off 2 at 89, Sinclair Oil 25¾, U. S. Steel 80½, Youngstown Sheet & Tube off 1½ at 81½, Studebaker 23¼, Sears Roebuck 39⅜, Douglas 54¼, Distillers Corp. Seagram 15¼, Cerro De Paso 23⅛, Union Carbide 40¼, American Woolen off 1 at 64¾, Pepsi-Cola 10, and Western Union 19.

Higher were Santa Fe 116, Southern Railway 44⅞, Mission Corp. 60⅞, Texas Co. 57⅜, Bethlehem 36⅜, General Motors 62⅜, International Harvester 28⅛, United Aircraft 27⅞, American Tobacco 61⅞, DuPont up 1¼ at 172¾, American Smelting 59, and American Telephone & Telegraph 151⅞.

Selected railroad and utility obligations drifted lower in a slow bond market.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our beloved Mother, Mrs. Addie Cunningham, who passed away three years ago today, October 12, 1945.

There's not a day that passes, Mom,
We do not think of you.
Your face is in our memories still;
Your voice, your footsteps too,
There's many a lonely tear.
God only knows how much we miss you Mom.
At the end of these three years.

Sadly missed by:
Her Children.

Can You Recognize Opportunity?

Of equal importance to having an opportunity in business is the ability to recognize that opportunity when it is presented. Opportunties were never greater in our business than now. It is interesting to know in this Company most of our top-flight sales executives came with us through the medium of a want ad for salesmen similar to this ad. We are today one of the largest companies of its kind; manufacturing electrical and chemical products.

Our general offices are located in New York City where we occupy approximately fifty thousand square feet of floor space in mid-Manhattan—our factory is in nearby Connecticut.

So you see, even though our business is national in scope, we are more or less home folks; therefore, feel free to come to Algonquin Hotel, Tuesday, October 12, 1948, 10:00 a. m. sharp, and let us discuss our problems together. We want men betwen 25 and 55 years of age, preferably married men who can furnish high character references acceptable to us. Our liberal percentage form of remuneration will make large earnings possible for you with no investment on your part. Ask for Mr. Sharrah.

OPPORTUNITY as district manager in established territory for experienced wholesale appliance salesman. Must have car. Apply by letter. We distribute Crosley Products, Tracy and Capitol Customized kitchens. Utility Company, Inc., P.O. Box 710, Clarksburg, W. Va.

ACETYLENE welder. Must be experienced in high pressure pipe line welding. Phone 4588.

FARMER, experienced, house furnished. Write Box 638-A, c/o Times-News.

COOK'S Helper. Apply Maryland Hotel.

WANTED—Young man for bookkeeping and retail selling. Permanent employment. Chance for good advancements. Call 52 between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. for interview.

MEN
The Greatest Opportunity
Of A Lifetime
Expansion program forces us to increase our activitiy, therefore, will negotiate with 4 men at once. Men selected will be thoroughly trained. The greenest rookies without any sales experience whatsoever have averaged $80 in dealer profits per week to start and doubled that when they became experienced. This is absolutely the opportunity many men have been looking for. It's a "Natural." Will make you happy, comfortable and financially independent. Prefer men aged 25 to 50. Car essential. Apply E. W. Reasey, 704 N. Mechanic St., Wednesday 10 A. M. and 2 P. M. sharp.

Ownership

We really do not own anything until we begin to share it with others, and even then we are only partners in its ownership. Stevenson tells of Hazlitt, the English writer visiting a great man's house to view his paintings. Suddenly he began "to triumph over these noble and wealthy owners, because he was more capable of enjoying their costly possessions than they were; because they had paid the money and he had received the pleasure."

We own nothing until we start to share our ownership. Then it spreads out and begins to pay its dividends. In my library are many choice books that I love, and which others have loved, as evidenced by the book-plates in them, and some day others will own these same books. I dare say that every other owner, if he still lives, still owns their contents, as well as I do. I am just a keeper for a time.

We all own the daylight, the beauty of earth, all the sunsets, every flower that our eyes see and admire, and every song our feathered friends give forth. Where appreciation is, there is ownership. The human mind is a tenant of ours, and it is through this mind that we are able to acquire the love of things and own them as they stimulate our mental and spiritual innate qualities.

No one can long be happy with any possession that he cannot share with others. It would grow rusty and useless, otherwise. The spread of ownership is in the price first paid. The man with a car delights in the enjoyment that others may have in it. The lover of a book is not satisfied until he has spread the news of its worth to many others.

It has often been said that the only things that we keep are the things that we give away. We may give away the thing, but keep the love—and love is something that spreads out, with never an end to it. With love and admiration I turn the pages of some book that a former owner has carefully marked and enthused over. There is something so much more precious than the intrinsic value of such a book.

Gallup Poll

Dewey Leads Today In Four Of Populous East Central States

By GEORGE GALLUP

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., October 7—Governor Thomas E. Dewey today holds a marked popular vote advantage in all four states of the East North Central section—Illinois, Michigan, Indiana and Ohio.

Including these four states, the Institute has now reported current presidential standings in sixteen states in its first nationwide, state-by-state roundup of political sentiment. Earlier this week the current picture in the 12 New England and Middle Atlantic states was presented.

Of the sixteen states, Governor Dewey leads President Truman in all but Rhode Island. But the areas surveyed thus far are regions where Republican support is traditionally the strongest. The national survey will continue during the next week with reports on the West Central, Mountain and Pacific coast states, concluding next Friday with the Southern section and a 48-state summary.

The Republican candidate's clean sweep of the East North Central section as of today contrasts with his record of 1944, when he took only two of the states, Ohio and Indiana.

Moreover, the margins by which Governor Dewey leads President Truman in the four states are substantially wider than the winning margins four years ago. Roosevelt's pluralities and Dewey's were very slim in each case.

Governor Dewey's margins this time are broad enough so that in none of the states is the Henry A. Wallace candidacy a decisive factor in the current standing of major party candidates. Mr. Wallace will not be on the ballot in Illinois under present state supreme court decisions.

With a month to go before Election Day this is the political scoreboard in the East North Central region:

"If the presidential election were being held today how would you vote—for Truman, for Dewey, or for Wallace?"

East North Central Section

State	Dewey	Truman	Wall.	Undec.
Illinois	..49%	40%	*	11%
Michigan	52	41	4	3
Indiana	..52	40	2	6
Ohio	51	42	3	4

*Institute interviews in Illinois did not ask respondents whether they would vote for Mr. Wallace since they will not have a chance to do so in November. Incidentally, this may account for some of the large difference between the undecided vote there and in the other three states.

Figures in today's survey are not final because the Institute is continuing to survey representative voters in these four states as well as the rest of the nation. Neither of the major party candidates has campaigned intensively in this region, although President Truman will stump Ohio, Illinois and Indiana next week. New reports based on polls now under way will be made before November 2.

Present evidence indicates, however, that political sentiment in the East North Central section has swung so heavily over to the Republican column that Governor Dewey may carry these states with larger pluralities than any candidate since Roosevelt in 1936.

The trend in the four states is shown in the following table which gives the Republican percentage of the major party vote in the last three elections:

Republican Percentage Major Party Vote

	1936	1940	1944
Illinois	...40.8%	48.8%	48.3%
Indiana	42.5	50.7	52.9
Michigan	.40.8	50.2	49.5
Ohio	.....39.2	47.8	50.2

Twelve states have previously been reported in this series of articles surveying political sentiment throughout the country, section by section. The first two sections were New England and the Middle Atlantic states, with the following results:

New England

	Dewey	Truman	Wall.	Undec.
Maine	..56%	34%	3%	7%
N. Hamp.	54	36	3	7
Vermont	60	33	1	6
Mass.	...60	43	2	5
Conn.	...43	39	4	14
R. Island	37	48	3	12

Mid-Atlantic

	Dewey	Truman	Wall.	Undec.
New York	47%	34%	11%	8%
N. Jersey	50	38	8	8
Penn.	...50	41	3	6
Delaware	49	36	1	14
Maryland	47	44	4	5
W. Va.	..49	43	2	6

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Winifred H. Said vs. Mohammed Ben Said. No. 20921 Equity in the Circuit Court for Allegany County.

The object of this suit is to procure a Decree divorcing the plaintiff from the defendant A VINCULO MATRIMONII. The Bill of Complaint states on the 17th day of August, 1946 the parties were married in New York City, where they lived together as husband and wife until the 9th day of November, 1946 when the said defendant abandoned and deserted the plaintiff and declared his intention to live with her no longer and that said abandonment has continued uninterruptedly from that time down to the present time and that said abandonment is for at least eighteen months and is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable hope of reconciliation.

That no children have been born to said parties of this marriage. That the plaintiff is a resident of the State of Maryland and has been so all of her life and that the defendant is a resident of New York, State of New York, and a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon this 27th day of September, 1948 ordered by the Circuit Court for Allegany County that the plaintiff, by causing this order to be inserted in some certain newspaper published in Allegany County, once a week for four successive weeks, before the 29th day of October, 1948 giving notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this Bill and warning him to be and appear in this Court in person or by Solicitor on or before the 15th day of November, 1948, to show cause if any he has why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Books Serve As Cold War Weapons

BERLIN—(AP)—Books are weapons in the great postwar struggle between Russia and the West for ideological control of Germany. The Americans, who let the propaganda-wise Communists get the jump on them in this field, are now bringing their culture to the Germans through municipal libraries. In the rural areas libraries on wheels are operated. The Russians came better prepared, with ready-made Marxist literature, and quickly capitalized on the paper and printing resources of their occupation zone, the largest in Germany.

Recently the Americans opened their 23rd U.S. information center in Germany at Fulda, in Hesse. The centers, known as "America Houses", are operated by the military government to provide German professional men and laymen with research and reading material on subjects denied them during the Hitler regime. They are designed to provide access to American culture.

These information centers — the British operate similar institutions — operate like American public libraries. Books are in English, German, Swedish and French. Each library has an average of 10,000 books. The program now is endeavoring to put more German language books into the centers.

The America houses also offer facilities for lectures, mixed American-German discussion groups and documentary films.

NEW YORK (AP)—William Spence of Rochester, N. Y., wanted a cartoonist. Seems he is writing a book and wants it illustrated. He visited New York City where friends gave him the name of Hal Lockwood, a cartoonist—also an address.

So Spence started out in this city of 8,000,000 people to find the address. A subway and a couple of buses later, he became confused in his directions. He picked a stranger who looked affable enough to set him straight. The stranger's name—Hal Lockwood, the cartoonist he was hunting.

Airways' Claim Against City Is Still In Dispute

Commission Seeks More Information

Further information will be sought by the Municipal Airport Commission on one of the four disputed items of deduction in connection with the city's financial settlement with Cumberland Airways, Inc., operator of the local airport in 1946 and 1947.

The group voted at a meeting in City Hall last night to request City Attorney Thomas B. Finan and City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson to confer with Charles Z. Heskett, attorney for the company, with regard to the $1,200 salary allowance paid to Mrs. Teresa Chapman in addition to her regular annual salary of $1,800 as bookkeeper for the firm.

Gibson's report in three other items in dispute, made his examination of Cumberland Airways' books for the year ending December 31, 1947, was approved.

The company, through its attorneys, Heskett and John T. Fey, is claiming $8,502.25, the full amount withheld by the city pending a final settlement.

Gibson Wants Rental

Gibson claims the city should remit only $6,034.24, thus giving Cumberland a rental fee of $2,463.01 for the two-year period the port was leased by Cumberland Airways.

In a recent letter to the commission, Heskett said Mrs. Chapman was hired as a bookkeeper and stenographer on January 1, 1946, at a salary of $150 per month. The attorney added that her salary for the first eight months of 1946 was not actually paid during that time.

Heskett said Mrs. Chapman theatened to sue for the money, in a letter dated November 29, 1947, and that the item was settled by the company.

In his report, Gibson pointed out the company listed one expense as $2,583.32 as depreciation on a Beechcraft plane.

The auditor recalled that at a commission meeting September 17, 1947, William J. Graham, Pittsburgh, head of Cumberland Airways, agreed to cut the depreciation figure in half and that it was not to be charged against the Cumberland Airport after July 1, 1947.

The $2,583.32, he said, represents depreciation at the full rate of 33⅓ per cent for the entire year. In his adjustment of this item, Gibson recommended cutting the amount to one-half year and the rate to one-half, bringing the figure down to $1,937.49.

Crash Expense Questioned

Third item questioned by Gibson was crash expense of $1,282.70 in connection with a Piper J-3 training ship which was being delivered to Johnstown, Pa., and crashed en route.

Commission Chairman Edmund S. Burke said in his opinion the city's obligation ceased when the plane left the local field.

The fourth disputed item was a $1,000 reduction in trade-in allowance on an Ercoupe.

Heskett explained in his letter to the commission that Fred Borden purchased a Stinson ship for $5,000 and an allowance of $3,000 was made to him as a trade-in on the Ercoupe. The allowance was later reduced to $2,000 on the company's books because John A. Chapman, airport manager for Cumberland Airways, had made too liberal an allowance on the trade-in, Heskett said.

Gibson told the commission last night that Borden has informed him the cost of the Stinson was $6,180.

The commission also voted last night to request Finan and Gibson to submit to Heskett copies of the minutes of the September 17, 1947, agreement with regard to Beechcraft depreciation, as well as other documentary evidence to substantiate the commission's decision to sustain Gibson's exceptions to the Cumberland Airways financial report.

No Stipulated Rental

Gibson claims the company had a net profit of $1,319.41 for its operations during 1947 and a profit of $2,148.60 for 1946, making a total of $3,468.01.

Under the terms of the lease with Cumberland Airways there was no stipulated rental fee but all profits over $1,000 were to go to the city.

The lease also provided that in the event the city and the company did not renew the lease after two years, the city would reimburse the company for money spent for buildings less depreciation.

A total of $45,379.90 was expended and depreciation has been fixed at $6,877.65. The city paid $30,000 of the reported $38,505.25 due and held the rest pending a settlement.

Virgil Parker, an employe at the airport, attended the meeting along with Gibson, Finan and Mayor Thomas S. Post.

Midland Man Struck By Automobile

John Ultis, 46, husband of Mrs. Susan Ultis, Midland, was admitted to Allegany Hospital last night for treatment of a cut tendon on his right hand and lacerations of the left hand.

Attaches said Ultis was hit by an automobile while getting off a bus near the Celanese Plant. He was reported in good condition.

A Celanese worker, Herman Fiarika, 22, Frostburg, caught the little finger of his left hand yesterday at 9:30 p. m. while piling beams at work. Taken to Allegany Hospital at 10:05, he had the finger amputated to the first knuckle. Fiarika was able to go home.

The Weather

The weather had its usual ups and downs yesterday with clouds and furtive sunshine and even .04 inches of rainfall. The thermometer showed a very respectable 71 maximum after a fairly cool overnight low of 50 degrees. Late last night the temperature was 56 degrees ushering in a cool but fair day today.

WHAT'S UP DOC?--That seems to be the question uppermost in the mind of little Richard Lee Crossland, who was one of the first youngsters to be examined yesterday at the opening day of the new child hygiene clinic which has been established in Danville, eight miles west of Cresaptown. Dr. Thomas Robinson, Cumberland pediatrician, is the "man with the needle," as far as young Richard is concerned. Miss Lois Eisentrout, R.N., Midland, recently appointed public health nurse, is shown as she assisted Dr. Robinson in the examination. The clinic, which will be held once a month for babies and pre-school children in the basement of the Church of the Brethren at Danville, was organized by Miss Margaret L. Morrissey, R.N., public health nurse for the Cresaptown district, and Miss Eisentrout. Those aiding in the project included Mrs. Orville Vandervort; Oliver Campbell, superintendent of the Church of the Brethren Sunday School, and Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Arnold, all residents of the Danville area.

Young Democrats Make Plans For Part In Campaign

Organization Seeks 300 Charter Members

The Young Democratic Club of Allegany County held its second organization meeting last night at the Cosmopolitan Club, adopted a constitution, agreed to affiliate with the state-wide organization, and decided to take an active part in the present political campaign.

William H. Buchholtz, president of the club, told the group he believes the organization should keep its charter open until at least 300 charter members have been obtained. It was decided that dues will be $1 per year, and that the age limit shall be 21 to 40. Both men and women may join.

Meeting are scheduled for each Monday night at 7:30 p. m. in the Cosmopolitan Club between now and the election. After that monthly meetings will be held.

Buchholtz appointed his executive board including William L. Wilson, Jr., F. Allan Weatherholt and F. Patrick Allender, this city; Paul Kenney, Frostburg; Leslie Clark, Lonaconing; and Thomas A. Kilduff, Midland.

Clark reported on a meeting of Young Democrats of Maryland in Baltimore last week, and reported that the Montgomery County Club is the first to actively affiliate with the new state organization and pay its per capita dues of 25 cents per member. He reported considerable interest in the organization and said all counties are expected to form clubs.

Clark said he visited Montgomery County and contacted a number of people. He said, "I believe I can confirm the claim of our congressional candidate (F. Byrne Austin) that he will carry Montgomery County by 3,000 votes."

Austin was present at the meeting and showed a film entitled, "Lest We Forget." He said he is becoming more confident of election each day.

The group decided to hold a banquet the latter part of the month for the purpose of arousing more interest in the Young Democratic Club and promoting the candidacy of Truman, Barkley and Austin.

Allender told of the activities of organized labor in behalf of the Democratic ticket and declared labor will have cars and workers in every precinct in the county on election day. "We intend to show that labor is loyal to its friends, and will work actively to defeat our enemies," he said. He told the Young Democrats, "We are glad this organization has been formed and will work with you in the interest of good government."

Police said Francis Gray, who was released on $25 bond, was taken into custody after a complaint was received at headquarters that an air rifle was being fired in the city. Raymond was arrested when he began quarreling with arresting officers, police said.

Charges were preferred by Sgt. Frank Shober, Sgt. John Newhouse, Detective Thomas J. See and Officer Walter Jenkins.

Mineral County GOP Names Oss Clerk Candidate

Keyser Man Wins In County Caucus

Mineral County, W. Va., Republicans last night nominated Harry Oss, Keyser real estate dealer, as the party candidate for the Clerk of Mineral County Circuit Court position which was left vacant by the death of Paul W. Dayton.

Oss, who is a former chairman of the county's GOP State Central Committee, received 28 and nineteen-twenty-seconds of the 46 votes cast to defeat C. C. Compton, Keyser, the only other nominee.

Oss will oppose the Democratic candidate in the general election November 2. The Democrats will select their candidate at the district convention scheduled to convene in Keyser today at 2 p. m.

The 46 Republican delegates from six districts in Mineral County held their convention yesterday in the county Court House and elected John Boor, Piedmont, permanent chairman, and Miss Juanita Rotruck, Keyser, permanent secretary.

Rep. Everett M. Dirkson, (R-Ill.) who has served in the House of Representatives for the past 16 years, and was prominently mentioned as a vice presidential candidate during the National GOP convention this year, addressed the Republican convention exhorting support for the party Presidential candidate, Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

Rep. Dirkson was introduced by Elliott Nefflen, Charleston, W. Va., attorney and former resident of Keyser.

Oss was introduced for nomination by Dr. Thomas Bess, delegate from the New Creek District of Mineral County, and his opponent, Compton, was introduced by Frank Burgess of the Elk District of the county.

The fractional vote occurred when several of the Elk district delegates split over the two men.

Education Group Of Local 26 Sets Up Objectives

New Hall, Plant Paper Are Needed

The educational department of Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America, CIO, is embarking on a three-fold program which will include a new union office, and educational research program and the establishment of a plant paper, Daniel Ford, publicity chairman of the Kelly local, announced yesterday.

Ford and Patrick Zembower, who recently completed a course at Tar Hollow Camp, operated by the Ohio State CIO Council, plan to put into practice here some of the techniques taught in the five-day course.

The first objective, a union hall on the first floor, union officials said, would enable the union to extend its activities program beyond what is now possible with the third floor location.

An active educational research program, including training courses in union leadership, has long been an objective of top union officials.

The establishment of a plant paper, Ford said, would enable the union to reach all of its members in the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company plant.

The educational committee will show motion pictures of particular interest to Kelly workers at each union meeting, the union said.

The union recently purchased a sound projector and recording machine for the use of the membership.

Youth Charged With Truancy Acts Sentenced

Educators Indicate Other Cases Pending

The first legal crackdown against truancy and school irregularities was being carried out yesterday with a 15-year-old local high school youth already committed to St. Mary's Industrial School and the mother receiving a suspended sentence.

Officials of the Allegany County Board of Education Personnel Department termed the action the first legal step of the 1948-1949 school term but said warrants have already been obtained in "several other cases," while still more are under investigation.

The youth was sentenced Saturday in Juvenile Court after records were presented to show that he has already missed 12 days of school in the present term without legitimate excuse.

Pupil Personnel Department officials said the high school student "was totally lacking in conformity with school regulations," and declared the parents who are separated were unable to control him.

The youth, according to officials, missed more than 30 days of school last year and frequently was the center of other troubles that occurred in the school.

Legal action was taken, officials explained, when the youth renewed "truancy tendencies and school irregularities" again this year.

The mother, with whom the youth resided, was given a suspended sentence and the student was sentenced to the industrial school for an indefinite period.

Officials, who last year preferred charges against several students and their parents for school irregularities, said yesterday they have already secured warrants for the arrest of several students who are not attending school regularly, or are failing to comply with other school regulations.

Mrs. Sarah Hart, First Gold Star Mother Of Cumberland, Found Dead

MRS. SARAH HART

Cumberland's first Gold Star Mother, Mrs. Sarah R. Hart, 107 North Johnson Street, after whose son the local Veterans of Foreign Wars Post is named, was found dead at her home last night.

Dr. J. H. Matthai, acting deputy county medical examiner, said Mrs. Hart, who resided alone, died of a heart disease and placed the time of death about 48 hours earlier.

Mrs. Hart, whose son, Henry Hart, was one of the first local soldiers to die in service during World War I, was for years active in the local VFW Post after it was formed in November 1925.

While actual records were lacking, many of her friends as well as members of the VFW post credited her with being the city's first Gold Star Mother.

She was, post members asserted, the only Gold Star Mother active in the Henry Hart Post prior to World War II. Mrs. Hart participated in many ceremonies held by the post in honor of her son who

Midland Motorist Who Fled Police Gets Jail Term

Captured After Chase Into Pennsylvania

John Edwin Savage, Midland, "who eluded police only so long" early Saturday, yesterday was sentenced to 60 days in County Jail in default of fines totaling $106.50 for motor vehicle violations.

Savage, who with four other men, drove from Mt. Savage across the Pennsylvania State Line and nine miles into the state with a police car chasing him, pleaded guilty to charges of drunken driving and operating an automobile on unauthorized tags.

Trooper Paul T. Long, who made the arrest, said he began following the car after he saw the five men leave Morgan's Tavern on Mt. Savage Road at 5:30 a. m. Saturday.

As they neared Mt. Savage, the trooper said, the driver "spotted" him in the rear mirror and headed back toward Barrelville. He was exceeding 80 miles an hour when he passed through Barrelville, according to Trooper Long.

The car police said was driven by Savage cut on to the Wellersburg Road after Trooper Long sounded the siren several times. The trooper said he attempted on several occasions to wreck the car by bumping against the rear but was unsuccessful.

Savage continued to speed over the narrow road and block the trooper until they reached a wider section and then the speed of the bigger car made it impossible for the trooper to catch them, police explained.

Trooper Long said he continued to follow the car and overtook the quintet about nine miles across the state line when the brakes on Savage's car began to burn.

Savage was returned to Allegany County jail after being arrested and held there until last night when he was given a hearing before Magistrate Roy S. Bowman in Cresaptown.

Arthur Lee Beal, Mt. Savage, a passenger in the car, forfeited bond of $6:45 on a charge of permitting tags issued to him to be used on another car.

Attendance Mark Of County Schools Up In September

Ramey Says Figures Are Among The Best

Student attendance in Allegany County Public Schools surged well above the 90 per cent mark in the first month of the present term, according to Arthur G. Ramey, director of pupil personnel.

The September attendance record is one of the best in county school history, according to Ramey, who explained that only two schools fell under the 95 per cent attendance mark and they remained well above the 90 per cent margin.

Five schools—Paper Mill, Luke; Jackson Street, Lonaconing; Ellerslie, Corriganville, and Carver Elementary—all listed attendance marks above 99 per cent.

A breakdown of schools shows that one-teacher schools have an attendance record of 95.2 per cent; two-teacher schools, 98 per cent; junior high schools, 97.6 per cent; senior high schools, 97.6 per cent; graded elementary schools, 98 per cent, and colored schools, 99 per cent in elementary and 98.4 per cent in high school.

The junior high schools showed an increase of one per cent over September, 1947; senior high schools, one per cent; graded elementary schools, 1.2 per cent, and colored elementary schools .6 per cent. The colored high school figures were the same this year as in September, 1947.

The most notable increases were in two elementary schools. Detmold, Lonaconing, jumped 4.5 per cent and Piney Plains jumped 4.2 per cent in the attendance of September this year over September, 1947.

Cumberland's two public high schools both jumped in attendance records with the Campobella school showing a 97.8 record for the past month as compared with 96.3 in September, 1947. Fort Hill, where the increase was slightly greater, showed 98 per cent attendance in the first month of the present term as compared with 96.9 of last year.

WAC Recruiting To Begin Here

Active recruiting for the WAC and WAAF will begin in the Cumberland area in the near future with the appointment of Sgt. Marian Luipersbeck as recruiter, the Army Recruiting Station announced yesterday.

Lt. Sally Coulter, Baltimore, who is in charge of WAC and WAAF recruiting in Maryland, said Sgt. Luipersbeck will be stationed in Frederick and will come to the Cumberland office on definite days, perhaps once a week.

The Army, Lt. Coulter said, is developing a "career ladder" for both the WAC and WAAF. Training will begin with a 10-week recruit period.

Recruits then may enter one of the five fields, communications, food services, personnel and administrative, photography and medical technician, and then work up the ladder to rank of chief warrant officer.

The plan is now being perfected in the food services field and as problems are worked out, similar advancement programs will be instituted in all five fields.

Council Decides To Readvertise For Pool Work

Several Concerns To Be Notified

Officials at City Hall said yesterday that firms which previously expressed interest in bidding on the installation of a recirculating system at Constitution Park pool will be advised of plans to readvertise for the work.

At the regular session of the Mayor and Council yesterday, Street Commissioner Edgar Reynolds was authorized to readvertise for such bids.

On June 30, the Mayor and Council passed an order accepting the bid of the Refinite Sales Company, Omaha, Neb., for the project.

Refinite submitted a bid of $17,304 for installation of a conventional type of pressure filter, with an alternate bid of $13,423 for the diatomaceous earth type of filter.

The former bid was accepted.

At a special session of the Mayor and Council on October 1, Mayor Thomas S. Post advised council members that another firm had offered to furnish a recirculating system for approximately $4,000 less than the $17,304 bid of the Refinite concern.

The Refinite firm, Mayor Post said, had not been notified that its bid had been accepted.

Reynolds opposed the suggestion that the previous order be rescinded and the bids be readvertised, until City Attorney Thomas B. Finan said in his opinion that the action could be taken because the council has the right to reject any or all bids, Refinite had not been notified that its bid had been accepted, and because the city had an opportunity to have the work done at less expense.

Rescinding of the order granting the bid to Refinite was approved unanimously with four affirmative votes. Water Commissioner William J. Edwards was out of town and was unable to attend that session.

Two other firms which submitted bids with Refinite were Permutit Company, Pittsburgh, and Proportioneer, Inc., Providence, R. I.

Official Plans Flood Inspection

Lt. Col. Harold E. Bisbort, recently appointed assistant district engineer in the Washington district office, Corps of Engineers, will visit Cumberland today on a field inspection trip.

John M. Wright, Jr., who is in charge of the U. S. Engineers office set up here for the Cumberland-Ridgeley flood control project, said he will conduct Col. Bisbort on a tour of the pressure conduit sites.

A crew is engaged in surveying property along Wills Creek with regard to securing rights-of-way which will be needed when a flood wall is constructed. Col. Bisbort will also inspect that phase of preliminary flood control work.

Wright said arrangements have been made with Postoffice Department officials to transfer the U. S. Engineers office from its present location at 129 Union Stret to two rooms in the basement of the Postoffice Building.

He said the transfer will probably be made within a week or 10 days.

The two rooms in the Postoffice Building were recently vacated by the Army Reserve Corps and the Marine Reserve detachment headquarters staffs.

Twenty-three food and drink establishments were inspected by the sanitary inspector, while the assistant inspector checked 90 food and drink places, according to the Health Department report.

Sixty-nine dairy farm inspections were made in September. A total of 158 births was reported, with 44 deaths and five stillbirths.
